Big Four Activate Berlin Pact

BERLIN (AP) – The Big Four foreign ministers signed documents today activating the 1971 Berlin accord easing travel to and from isolated West Berlin. The agreement, a milestone in East-West relations, goes into effect at midnight.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers, Foreign Secretary Alex Douglas-Home of Britain and Foreign Ministers Andrei Gromyko of the Soviet Union and Maurice Schumann of France signed the final protocol in West Berlin's Allied Control Council Building. This is the same Prussian palace where the agreement was initialed Sept. 3, 1971, following 18 months of negotiations.

The three Western foreign ministers conferred in Bonn with West German Chancellor Willy Brandt before flying separately to isolated West Berlin, 110 miles inside East Germany.

Chancellor Willy Brandt's government had demanded the Berlin accord as the price for the treaty and Moscow had insisted that West Germany ratify the pact before the Berlin accord went into effect.

Last minute German-Russian wrangling over the treaty ratification had threatened to upset the timetable. Bonn wanted to include in the ratification document mention of its desire for eventual reunification of West and East Germany.

The Soviets balked but a compromise formula, undisclosed, was worked out at the last minute.

The Four Power agreement gives West Berliners 30 visiting days a year to East Berlin and East Germany and provides for eased Communist controls of vital overland access ways to West Berlin.

Two Skyjackers Take $700,000 In Ransom

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

One plane hijacker bailed out shortly after take off from Reno, Nev., early today while a second forced a plane to take him toward Algiers after a transcontinental flight from San Francisco with a stop in New York City for refueling.

The Western Airlines jet was ordered to Algiers after the hijacker, who claimed at first to have a bomb and three accomplices, released all 41 passengers forced to fly with him from San Francisco, police said. The FBI said five crewmen were on board for the transatlantic flight.

The air pirate, a young black man dressed in a military uniform, had seized a smaller plane after take off from Seattle and ordered it to land in San Francisco, where he demanded and received $500,000 ransom and a larger plane.

The man released about 50 passengers in San Francisco and forced the others to board the larger plane.

Passengers released in San Francisco said the hijacker implied that he and his alleged comrades were members of the leftist Students for a Democratic Society. Airline officials in Seattle had said that the hijacker originally demanded freedom for black activist Angela Davis, but the report was later discounted.

In Washington, the FBI announced that American authorities in Honduras had in custody a man accused of hijacking a jet in Pennsylvania last month, collecting $303,000 in ransom and then forcing the plane to Central America where he bailed out.

An FBI spokesman said Frederick W. Hahneman, 49, turned himself in early today to authorities at the U.S. Embassy in Tegucigalpa.

Hahneman was charged in a federal warrant Thursday with hijacking an Eastern Air Lines jet shortly after it left the Allentown, Pa., airport May 5.

In Reno, a massive search was on for an armed man who jumped from a United Air Lines 727 jetliner just after taking off with $200,000 in ransom and some parachutes.

The man, his face concealed by a pillow slip with eye slits, charged aboard a flight that had just arrived at Reno International Airport from New York City. He was forced to transfer to another 727 after being told the plane he was in was low on fuel and had an engine out.

During the negotiations for the ransom in $100 bills, the man held a .357-magnum pistol over three stewardesses, the pilot and copilot.

The plane transfer was accomplished with the hijacker shielding himself with hostages as he moved from one to the other.

The hunt was launched immediately in a remote area between Reno and Ashoe Lake, 25 miles away, sheriff's deputies said. The plane returned to the airport 30 minutes after take off.

Two Arrests In Home Theft

CHARLESTON — Stanley Lee Davidson, 30, East Prairie, and Jimmy Wilson, 19, of Anniston, are being held in Mississippi county jail for investigation of stealing, according to Deputy Sheriff Everett Holley.

At 2 a.m. today Mrs. Ollie Jackson, 204 W. Pine Street., East Prairie, reported a television set and hairdrier had been stolen from her home.

The men were arrested at 5:30 a.m. today by Deputy Sheriff Jack Ivie, who said the stolen articles were in their possession.

Fake Bills Being Passed

A lazy counterfeiter has moved into the Caruthersville area and is passing bogus $10 bills of poor quality.

The counterfeit money is $1 bills converted to look like $10 bills. The picture of George Washington is still on the money.

The Chamber of Commerce was notified of the bogus money through the Red Alert system.. In the system the Chamber of Commerce in an area where a counterfeiter or bogus check passer is working, notifies other Chambers in the area, which in turn notify otherChambers.

The purpose is to keep bad money passers from moving from town to town.

Man Fined On Driving Charge

CHARLESTON — One arrest was reported by the police department. Larry Gene Poley, 30, route one, was arrested at 3:42 a.m. today on a charge of careless and reckless driving and fined $15 by City Judge Frank Gillispie.

Humphrey Tries To Dispel Loser Image

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Three days before Tuesday's crucial California presidential primary, Sen. George McGovern has begun courting party regulars in anticipation of victory. And Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey is trying to dispel the loser's image left by a poll showing him far behind.

McGovern received two key endorsements Friday from powerful New York City Democrats, Meade Esposito of Brooklyn and Patrick Cunningham of the Bronx, and he met privately with Rep. Wilbur Mills of Arkansas.

Humphrey struggled through a long, tough campaign day, during which he said he would not withdraw from the Democratic race for the White House even if he is defeated in the winner -take-all contest for California's 271 votes at the nominating convention.

Meanwhile, Rep. Shirley Chisholm won a court order Friday telling the Federal Communications Commission to direct CBS and ABC television networks to give her prime time matching joint appearances of McGovern and Humphrey.

Mrs. Chisholm of New York and Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty, both Democratic presidential aspirants also campaigning in California, had demanded equal time to counter joint interviews of Humphrey and McGovern. But Yorty's request for equal television time was turned down by the 9th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco Friday, and he demanded that he be included in the order issued in favor of Mrs. Chisholm by a federal appeals court in Washington.

Two Arrests In House Theft

Police are holding two juveniles today for Thursday night's robbery of the C. D. Russell home at 829 Ruth St.

One of the youths had $40 in his pocket when he was arrested and the other had blank checks and a stamp pad with Russell's name on them.

About $75 in silver dollars were taken from the home during the robbery. The youths were picked up after they tried to pass silver dollars at a grocery store on Gladys Street. The owner became suspicious and called police.

Five Sought In Gun Attack

PEERLESS PARK, Mo. (AP) — Police were searching for four men and a woman in this St. Louis suburb today following the wounding of an off-duty Missouri highway patrolman Friday night.

Trooper Louis G. Garris was shot in the leg and back with a shotgun and was listed in good condition at a St. Louis County hospital, police said.

Garris was taking a friend home when the pair was invited into a clubhouse on the Meramec River. Police said Garris was shot after the four men and one woman inside the clubhouse learned he was a police officer, police said.

Garris' friend was not hurt, police said.

Portageville Man Injured

HAYTI — John Delisle, 22, of Portageville, was injured in a one-car accident at 4:50 a.m. today near Hayti on highway 84 at the I-55 overpass.

He was taken to Pemiscot County Hospital in Hayti with cuts and bruises on the face and possible chest injuries.

According to the highway patrol Delisle's car ran off the right side of the road, struck a guard rail, crossed back over the road and hit the other guard rail.

Three Fined

EAST PRAIRIE — Richard Wilson, Roger Scott, and Dale Crump, all of East Prairie, were fined $25 each by Police Judge J. Marvin Bryan on charges of drinking in public.

Other charges and fines levied in police court include James L. Blue, public intoxication, $20; Patricia Ann Johnson, careless and reckless driving, $25; Eual Russom, public intoxication, $20; Cathy Johnson, assaulting a police officer, $20, and illegal parking, $10.

Edward Bonta pleaded innocent to careless and imprudent driving, failure to stop for a police car red light and speeding.

American Planes Knock Out North Viet Supply Systems

SAIGON, (AP) — Scores of American fighter-bombers ranged from Hanoi southward to the big coastal city of Vinh Friday, smashing at North Vietnam's supply and transportation system and shooting down the 35th MIG interceptor this year, the U.S. Command announced today.

The Command said Air Force, Navy and Marine attack planes flew more than 250 strikes across North Vietnam, destroying or damaging nine bridges, 41 trucks, 36 surface craft, 43 supply buildings and 21 storage areas.

A flight of four Air Force F4 Phantoms escorting the bombers on raids intercepted two MIG19s about 40 miles northeast of Hanoi and 50 miles south of the Chinese border, the Command said. It said one of the MIGs was downed.

The Command reported no American air losses in Friday's raids, but North Vietnam claimed three U.S. planes were shot down.

Overcast skies and thundershowers continued today to cut into the number of air strikes flown by U.S. fighter-bombers over South Vietnam, and marginal weather also was reported over the North.

In South Vietnam, the Saigon command claimed 450 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops were killed by government ground forces and air and artillery strikes in fighting along the northern, central and southern fronts as the enemy's offensive went into its 66th day.

The Navy said strike planes from the 7th Fleet carriers Coral Sea, Saratoga and Kitty Hawk attacked dozens of targets ranging from the Hanoi area 160 miles southward to Vinh.

Navy pilots reported knocking out at least eight bridges in a continuing campaign to strangle North Vietnam's transportation network and cut the flow of war materials into South Vietnam.

On the ground, North Vietnamese troops continued to maintain heavy pressure on Phu My district town in central coastal Binh Dinh province, where three northern districts fell to the enemy earlier in the offensive.

Phu My was reported encircled by enemy forces.

At Kontum, in the central highlands to the west, 137 North Vietnamese troops were killed while government losses were 12 dead and 55 wounded, the Saigon command said.

On the far northern front, 25 miles above Hue, two task forces of South Vietnamese paratroopers trying to

Blanton Named To College Office

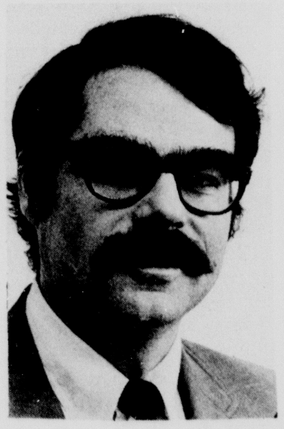
ST. LOUIS — Harry A. Blanton, administrative assistant to the president of St. Louis University, lawyer and former teacher and assistant academic dean at Loyola University in Chicago, has been appointed vice president for academic affairs of the College of St. Francis in Joliet, Illinois.

He is the son of Harry C. Blanton of Sikeston.

In announcing that Blanton will succeed the Rev. David M. Clarke, recently named 17th president of Regis College in Denver, CSF President Francis J. Kerins noted that the new academic vice president has been a civic leader in each of the communities in which he has lived since graduating from law school in 1961.

The 36-year-old Blanton took a bachelor's degree in English at the University of Notre Dame in 1958 and doctor of jurisprudence at the University of Missouri law school in Columbia three years later. He practiced law in Sikeston, with the firm of Blanton, Blanton & Rice four years, then went to Loyola as an English teacher in the University College evening school and assistant academic dean of the college of arts and sciences. He took a master's degree in English at Loyola in 1968.

Blanton became administrative assistant at St. Louis University in July of 1969.



Harry A. Blanton

He has been St. Louis U. liaison representative to the Independent Colleges and Universities of Missouri and, while completing a doctorate dissertation in higher education, has been graduate student representative to the education faculty of the university.

At Loyola, his duties included academic counseling, director of the honors convocation for superior students, prelegal adviser and member of the under-graduate committee on admissions. He also is active in Scouting.

Blanton and his wife, the former Carol Page, are the parents of six children.

Call Warsaw Pact Summit In Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — A Warsaw Pact summit has been called in Moscow for next week to discuss the outcome of President Nixon's visit, East European sources said today.

The informants said they expected the summit to be attended by leaders of both government and Communist party organizations from all alliance members.

The sources said they did not know the exact date set for the summit but understood it was to be "early next week."

It was probable the Soviets convened the summit to obtain a public stamp of approval from their Warsaw Pact partners for the results of the Nixon trip.

Also forecast was some discussion about where the pact is to go now on questions of Europe, including a mutual military disengagement in central Europe.

Job Bank Opens Operations In Area

JEFFERSON CITY — Two new job banks, Southeast Missouri and Capital Area, went into operation Thursday completing a state-wide system. The new banks involve 12 cities and 43 counties.

Herman Julien, director of the Missouri Division of Employment Security, announced the additions.

Southeast Missouri Job Bank comprises division offices in Cape Girardeau, Caruthersville, Kennett, Sikeston, Poplar Bluff, and the counties served by the offices.

Capital Area Job Bank includes the office areas of Jefferson City, Columbia, Hannibal, Kirksville, Marshall, Moberly, and Mexico.

Central control for both banks is Jefferson City.

"The Missouri Division is sixth among all state Employment Security agencies to establish job bank statewide," Julien said. "The function of the Division's Employment Service is the filling of employers' job orders and the suitable placement of job-seekers in the state, those entering the labor force and returning service-men as well as those unemployed workers hit by economic change. Job Bank makes it possible to refer workers in areas where there are no job openings to an employer in another cummunity where workers may be needed."

A job bank is a listing of job orders updated daily by computer and distributed by mail on microfiche to the Division's 40 local offices daily. The Missouri Job Bank System uses microfiche for listing job orders and displaying these job orders in the offices. Microfiche may display up to 1,248 different job orders. Missouri is one of a few states that produce their own microfiche. The local offices call in their job orders to Jefferson City each night.

Five banks cooperate in the system. Missouri established its first job bank in St. Louis in June of 1969. It was the second job bank in the nation. In February of 1970, Kansas City Job Bank became operational. St. Louis and Kansas City Job Banks are bi-state banks. Four Kansas offices are in Kansas City Bank, and five Illinois offices have joined with St. Louis Bank.

In 1971, Southwest Missouri Job Bank began. The two additions complete the network of operations in Missouri, and any bank may make referrals from job listings received from other areas.

Julien said the contribution of job bank to placement services has been twofold: "We have available an up -to- date register of all job orders, and control over the number of applicants referred."

Plea For Changes In Government

With the belief that state government structural charges will "set the stage for more well-considered legislation" Jack Schramm of University City says he is basing a drive for the office of lieutenant governor on governmental reorganization.

Schramm, now completing his eighth year in the Missouri House of Representatives, spoke to a Standard reporter Friday about his campaign for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor.

"If we make state government more visible where we can see and be seen, and get where we can hear and be heard, the government will become more responsive to what people want," he said.

"This could solve the problem of people wanting to bypass the legislature and open the way for other governmental reforms," Schramm explained.

To get the more general social legislation passed such as tax relief for the elderly and mental health reforms, this opening up of the legislative processes must come first, he observed.

"My priority is on the more specific estrangement between government and people" he said. "Too long the people have felt government is run behind closed doors with shady deals. There is a definite problem of trust in government. We must reduce the distance between the people and the decision making process."

If elected, Schramm said he would use the office of lieutenant governor as a forum for the development of innovative changes.

"Too often the legislature has been run like a fire department, going from crisis to crisis with a Band-Aid approach to serious problems."

Speaking of the property tax, the representative said he supports a reduced emphasis in support for education.

If the federal government fails to step in and support education, then the money should come from a combination of income and sales tax. But, Schramm added, this tax cannot be sold to the people unless it's basically the same as before restructuring.

"The income tax is a better source of revenue because it's a 'growth' tax–it increases with the economy," he explained.

A sponsor of legislation to provide tax relief for the Missouri senior citizens, Schramm backed the "circuit breaker" bill, which was designed to rebate taxes to both home owners and renters, tied to each person's income.

Schramm has also sponsored reform legislation. This includes education, environment, administration of justice, housing and health care.

Schramm has said he tries to "avoid coming off like a knight on a white charger."

But the central problem he sees in government was summed up by a bumper sticker the young legislator observed earlier..." "The majority isn't silent, the government is deaf."

SOLDIER IN FOCUS

A Congressional Medal of Honor winner has helped put the role of a soldier in focus for us. He is Captain Paul Bucha, who teaches at West Point. Speaking at the Governor's Prayer Breakfast in New Haven, Conn., last week, Captain Bucha called for "peace at home and within ourselves" and said it was "absurd to think professional soldiers are pro-war."

The military man serves, he said, "because he believes that what he as an individual can do, may help speed the day when swords will be beaten into plowshares."

Captain Bucha, who was named one of the top 10 young men of 1971 by the Jaycees, said in his address that "the great tragedy of our age" is that some of its best minds "are devoted to killing people to prevent unrestrained spoils-taking by a victor."

"No man lives by the sword," he pointed out. "All live in the hope of peace. The career military man lives in the hope that his presence in uniform will make it possible to keep the sword sheathed." It is the military man, he said, "who has most to lose by war."

The many millions of ex-G.I.'s scattered throughout the country can bear him out. Particularly in a nation that has had a draft for the last 30 years and more, it is absurd to look on soldiers as different than ordinary men.

COMING ALIVE WITH JUNE

Across the flat country of East Arkansas, to the White River and beyond, and down the sweep of the Mississippi Delta, the earth is coming to life. Tractors buzz up and down the fields, almost with the fervor of drag racers. Green rice shoots spread from highway to horizon in Arkansas. There is a bursting of plant life in the rich soil of the Delta. Crop dusters swoop down and out of sight behind rows of foilage. Cattle fatten themselves in West Tennessee.

In the city, the trees have reached their full glory and each leaf becomes a miniature kite in the breezes from the south. The parks are jammed with game players and picnickers, and some who simply loll in the shade or watch the passing parade.

On the highway, there is a catalog of license plates from throughout the nation. New York whips by in a sport car. Pennsylvania, Indiana, Michigan, Oregon, Texas, California — on and on goes the march of states. People moving to new locations in station wagons packed floor to roof and pulling trailers. Campers with boats attached. Tourists with luggage stacked atop the roof. Families seeing America, and American looking back at what the auto, the interstate highways, and affluence have produced in a form of mobility.

The sky over the Mid-South is a huge cup of blue. Then flecked with fluffy white. Then gray, with gusts of wind and distant thunder.

All about is the spirit of change. And why? It's June, with its rare days, its sense of the poetry of life, its perennial beauty. For this is the time when people as well as the rooted plants come alive.

D-DAY, BEFORE AND AFTER

They came out of the morning mist from the west, swarmed onto the beaches, and as they died others came to take their places, to crawl through the hedgerows and swamps and ultimately to crush the monstrous military machine of Hitler. That was D-Day, 28 years ago.

Others came from other morning mists.

A squadron of gunboats rounded Hopefield Bend at daylight and attacked a force of Confederate craft. Before dark, the city was occupied by Union troops. That was the Battle of Memphis, June 6, 1862.

Another time it was late afternoon when the Marines went over the top. Artillery shells and machinegun fire cut them down in the high grass and corporals commanded companies because officers and sergeants were dead. But they accomplished their mission. That was the Battle of Belleau Wood, June 6, 1918.

United Nations troops slogged through the mud above the 38th Parallel, moving back after Red Chinese and North Koreans had forced them to retreat. In sight was a high ridge. That was the Battle of Heartbreak Hill, June 6, 1951.

Israeli tanks raced across the desert, clouds of sand and death following in their wake. Before them swept panic as Egyptians fled barefooted back to the Suez. That was the start of the Six-Day War between Arab and Jew, June 6, 1967.

Airborne infantrymen stalked warily through jungles near the border of Laos, South Vietnamese beside them, in a sweep of the A Shau Valley. That is Operation Apache Snow, June 6, 1969.

Memorable dates are these, all a part of history tinged with glory. From D-Day, the largest operation, to the Battle of Memphis, the smallest, they signify sacrifice with honor, and Americans hold their heads high at the memory.

And then, may our heads be bowed with a prayer to God that another June 6 will dawn with the morning mists of common dignityand peace.

EUROPE'S TRAINS

Americans have long envied Europeans for the luxury and comfort of their railroad accommodations. Today, European railroads link cities all over the continent, and travelers can sup on three-course meals and sip vintage wines. The International Union of Railways, which helps facilitate European rail travel, celebrates its 50th anniversary on Thursday, June 8, with an exhibition at Montparnasse Station in Paris. The IUR standardizes customs procedures, timetables and equipment from country to country.

Rail travel in Europe is continually improving, Computers at travel centers can handle sleeper-reservations for 1,600 trains at any one time. England in particular has enjoyed a boom in railroading in the past 10 years, primarily on routes connecting such large cities as Birmingham and Manchester with London. The distances involved -- about 200-300 miles -- are too short for flying and too long for comfortable driving on a day's business. After electrification of the lines in 1966, passenger use jumped by 20 per cent in one year and has now surpassed air traffic on the same routes. Forecasts envision a 155-mile- an-hour train which will cut the London-Glasgow trip to about four hours. It now takes six.

Railways in Europe have always had something of the romantic attached to them. But about all that's left of the old romanticism are such names as Flying Scotsman, Rheingold, Mayflower and the now-defunct Brighton Belle. However, those not looking for speed can sample the revival of steam propulsion on a seven-mile railway system in Wales. Buffs on the Talyllyn Railway are asked to get out and chase sheep off the track, or sand slippery rails from a watering can. For luxury, the rail traveler's best bet is the Paris-Nice Mistral Express, which features its own cinema, hairdresser and bookshop.

PSST — WANNA KNOW A SECRET?

There's an unwritten rule about government information and it appears to be, "When in doubt, classify it." A retired security officer, William G. Florence, confirmed this suspicion when he testified last year before the House Subcommittee on Foreign Operations and Government Information. Florence said a memo once circulated in the Pentagon suggesting that the use of "Top Secret" be reduced. "Believe it or not," Florence said, "that note itself was marked Top Secret." He estimated that only one-half of one per cent of all classified Defense Department material contained genuine secrets.

President Nixon's executive order limiting government secrecy became effective on Thursday, June 1. He signed it last March to end the classified memo kind of thing and to placate Congress, which had been calling for more freedom of government information since the brouhaha over the Pentagon Papers. The order reduces the number of bureaucrats who can stamp anything Top Secret, Secret or Confidential. The number of officials with access to the Top Secret stamp, for instance, will be reduced from 5,100 to 1,860.

Theoretically, all 10-year-old Top Secrets, eight-year- old Secret papers and six -year- old Confidential files will become available to the public on June 1. But don't expect to find out all about the Korean War, the landing of U. S. troops in Lebanon in 1958, the Bay of Pigs invasion in 1961 and the Cuban missile crisis of 1962 on that date. If anyone wants to know a secret he must first of all know which one he wants. Then he must direct a request to the department involved and wait for the individual who classified the information to decide whether to release it. If the official says "no," the seeker can appeal to a departmental committee, then to the newly created Inter-agency Classification Review Committee. And finally, if he's still interested and has the time and money, he can appeal to the federal courts.

The archives are clogged with secrets. There are an estimated 160 million pages of them on World War II alone. President Nixon asked Congress in August 1971 for $636,000 to begin a five-year program of clearing this material for release. But for all its interest in government secrets, Congress has yet to appropriate the money.

ZEN BUDDHISM BEATS ALL

Japanese businessmen are reportedly stunned by President Nixon's new economic policy. But they can always turn to Zen Buddhism to cushion the impact.

Many leaders in Japanese industry favor Zen training to infuse the virtues of enthusiasm, discipline and loyalty in the new breed of "economic samurai," says the National Geographic Society.

Large firms such as Matsushita Electric Co. offer to send their employes to temples for long weekends of training. The volunteers receive instruction, clean the temple grounds and purge their minds by sitting in meditation.

There are two main schools. The larger, Soto, holds that the enlightenment of inner understanding can be attained, gradually. The Rinzai sect believes that it comes in a flash of insight after grueling hours of meditation — frequently accompanied by physical blows and shouts.

"A strange experience but good," said a participant at a weekend Rinzai session for businessmen. "You reach your limit, yet can't make a sound. You yearn for the beating which pulls you up straight again."

Judging by that, President Nixon sounds like a Rinzai practitioner from way back.

ENFORCING THE BILLBOARD BAN

The idea of enacting a Tennessee law prohibiting billboards closer than 660 feet to an interstate or primary highway in non-industrial or non-urban areas was to stop the despoiling of the landscape — and to avoid a cut in federal highway funds.

We are disturbed to hear that some 400 illegal signs have been erected in Tennessee since the law took effect April 4. The right-of way engineer for the state Highway Department says all the reports from his scouts are not yet in, but it is "accurate to say" that some ssgn companies are violating the new regulation.

Enforcement could not get off the ground the minute the legislature decided to go along with federal requirements, to avoid a 10 per cent loss of road funds. But the sign builders have known all along what was coming and what the law said as of April 4. It is lamentable to think that some would try to sneak in under the wire through illegal tactics.

We are glad to see the Highway Department is doing all within its power to halt the erection of new signs in illegal areas, and to obtain the means to force those companies which have violated the new law to remove, at their own expense, the billboards, which have gone up in the past two weeks.

Tennessee has some 7,000 miles of Interstate Highway system and primary federal roadway to be concerned about. Much of that goes through areas zoned to permit signs near the highway. A lot of research will be needed to ascertain what is legal or illegal. Then there are about 32,000 signboards to be checked out. All of that is understood.

However, we would hope that the billboard companies, having lost to the legislature, would not now try to circumvent it by plying their trade as if such a law had not been passed. — Commercial Appeal.

After calling in one of the sisters for a chat, the priest said, "What would you have been if you hadn't become a nun?"

"A prostitute," the nun replied.

The father fell back in his chair aghast and then, after regaining his composure, he repeated the question.

"A prostitute," the sister said again.

"Oh, thank God," sighed the priest. "I thought you said a Protestant."

IF AUTO TAX GOES, CAN PHONE TAX END?

With passage of legislation repealing one ancient Federal excise tax (the 7-per cent manufacturers' tax on autos) now under consideration, Congressional attention has turned to another "oldie", notes Tax Foundation, Inc.

A bill has been introduced to repeal the 10-per cent Federal excise tax on phone calls (a measure set up as "temporary" 30 years ago). Originally begun as a wartime measure, the levy was supposed to lapse six months after the end of WW II. The currently schedule phase-out date for the tax is 1982. It now brings in $1.6 billion annually.

True, we used to have money. But that was two shopping carts ago.

In 1903, Lenin commanded a following of 16 in London. By November 7, 1917, Lenin's followers had increased and though there were only 40,000 of these Bolsheviks in Russia, they overthrew the Kerensky government which had deposed the Czarist regime the previous May 12th. These 40,000 communists took over 150 million backward peoples, including Russians and dozens of other ethnic groups formerly ruled by the Czars. In the 55 years since then, communism has taken over a billion persons, or a third of the world's population, and Marxist Socialism has spread beyond the wholly communist countries to dominate many other governments and exert heavy influence in virtually all the nations of the world.

In 1933, in the United States, the Fabian Socialists began to extoll the virtues of Socialism so that they might take credit for social reform. They used subtle and insidious pressures to undermine and prevent opposition to their schemes. Another tool of the leftists was propaganda, at which they are history's greatest masters.

The propaganda line used to head off anti-communist efforts by American businessmen was: "You must not show much love of country; if you do, it will disturb stockholders, alienate labor and lose customers." A large segment of business management is sold on this false line of the enemy, regardless of what owners or stockholders may believe.

Defense of our free-market, profit-motive, personal-enterprise economic system is nothing short of self-preservation for the nation's businessmen. Those who fail to do their duty in his respect may be guilty only of apathy, but if they expect someone else to fill the gap, they are leaving their survival in the hands of others.

Corset-brassiere harbingers: Gov't muscles up for far wider wage-price decontrols

WASHINGTON — Despite women's lib, the very proper Pay Board has a landmark case on its hands -- what to do with a petition for wage increases from an embattled coalition of corset and brassiere workers locals of the prestigious International Ladies Garment Workers Union (ILGWU). This is no snickering matter. To harassed Pay Board members the corset and brassiere crisis looms larger than Teddy Gleason's Longshoremen.

The mainstay of this corset case is the union's memorandum to the board stating that the ILGWU and the Associated Corset and Brassiere Manufacturers, Inc., would put their new wage contract into effect 75 days after filing for a 9.3 per cent first year increase for 3,200 sewing machine operators -- mostly black and Puerto Rican women.

The international union, one of the world's most influential, led by Lou Stulberg, filed on Feb. 16. It was all very formal. There was no doubt that the cost of living provisions made the 9.3 per cent hike acceptable to all. But the Pay Board bridled at being told by the New York corset and brassiere workers that it would have to approve the compact in 75 days.

This put a new face on Phase Two. The board interpreted the petition as a needle from the garment workers, one of whose leaders said, "We really can't sit on needles for months."

The union's move was neither defiance nor challenge. It said, in effect, it seems to me, that the women workers wanted their pay and might not be able to be held in line after 75 days. So early in April the employers' association, not having heard from the Pay Board and having already increased salaries by the permissible 5.5 per cent, added the additional wages to the women's pay envelopes.

This irked the board. It had, through the Cost of Living council and the Justice Dept., already taken two landmark actions.

In mid-April the A & P chain food stores and Baltimore Local 117 of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters had been ordered to roll back contracted wage increases ranging from some 15 and 22 per cent down to 7 per cent the first year. The union was ordered not to strike nor take any action to force the grocery chain to pay the higher wages.

Thus the Pay Board won a victory far more significant than its actions in the mines, on the rails or waterfronts. The board now has the power to order wages rolled back.

Then a few days ago in court the Pay Board sought the right to force union members to repay their employers for wages paid in excess of the 5.5 guideline or other approved wage hikes. This was in the case of 39 members of "Typo" Local 47 in Connecticut (International Typographical Union). Having won rollback rights the Pay Board now wants pay back power.

Now the Pay Board is pondering action to empower it to time its own decisions. It considers the corset and brassiere petition a "time limit" case. There is little dispute over the justification for the wage increase but some board members believe they can't permit a union or a company to give them a deadline for decision.

The principle is the whole thing -- not the nature of the product or the size of the firm or the union locals. Note there are only 77 meat workers, 39 "typos" and 3,200 women, spread across many ladies' undergarment shops, involved in these three cases. But the principles set are enormous.

What if firms with thousands of workers were found in similar violation? What if a union struck in defiance of the Pay Board? What if the workers refused to repay the employers? What if firms simply notified the Pay Board that they'd move unless they heard from it?

On the other hand the Pay Board would have enourmous power if it let itself get backlogged and so could veto collective bargaining agreements -- or delay their implementation for a year.

The Pay Board's desire for controls power is not whimsy. Behind the scenes of the board and its parent Cost of Living Council, in the high echelons of its executive director Don Rumsfeld and its new chairman, the easy-does-it free marketeer George Shultz, there is much planning for sweeping decontrols.

At this moment the plans are to decontrol, soon, scores of thousands of additional firms and millions of workers by lifting wage and price restrictions on firms with 1,000 or fewer workers. This would wipe out "Tier Three." By shedding a tier Rumsfeld and Shultz would have only corporations which the big industries under controls.

Thus the Pay Board and the entire stabilization system will have monitored the last of the small firms and will be set to handle the first of the new big ones coming up in 1973 -- General Electric, for example, which will set the pace for the entire electrical industry. And "auto" at that year's end which ill set the scales for heavy industry negotiations throughout 1974. The Pay Board's belief is that it's later than many think in these industries. And they're not forgetting construction either.

So the principles are being set by corset and brassiere seamstresses and meat cutters and typographers.

They'll set some big headlines, these handfuls, in coming months.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Thirty years ago, Chet Holifield came to Congress out of a men's apparel shop with visions of public service in his head. He took his place with the young Turks, standing up for reform, battling the special interests, putting his conscience ahead of his bank balance.

Today, the California Democrat still has the tweedy look of a haberdasher. But he has lost the light in his eyes. He has become a power in the House, a party to backroom deals. The special interests he once fought are now his friends, and his office has become a watering hole for their lobbyists.

When he wanted to relax on his way to a Geneva atomic convention last summer, for example, Holifield was offered the use of a Spanish villa belonging to industrialist Perkins McGuire. As House Government Operations chairman, he has general jurisdiction over government contracts involving McGuire's wide corporate interests.

Holifield was accompanied during his five-day stay, incidentally, by Rep. Craig Homer, a stuffy California conservative, devoted to the big money interests. There was a time when Holifield would have fought Hosmer, not fraternized with him.

At home, Holifield has been slugging it out with Ralph Nader over the consumer protection bill and, for his heroics, has been accepting the backpats of the special pleaders.

One of Washington's most effective lawyer-lobbyists, Neil Naiden, has organized $100-a-plate suppers to raise money for Holifield and invited a host of lobbyists to pony up.

PATRONAGE FOR LOBBYIST

When Naiden's son, Fred, wanted a summer job, Holifield put the boy on the public payroll as a Capitol page. The lobbyists' son earned $1,200 during two summers under Holifield's wing.

Naiden also made the arrangements and wrote the testimony for a pitch before Holifield's committee by the Western Electronic Manufacturers Association.

Another Naiden client, Babcock and Wilcox, was distressed over the Atomic Energy Commission's regulatory proceedings. Naiden complained to Holifield, who has considerable clout at the AEC.

In an earlier column, we reported that ITT's Robert Schmidt delivered $500 in crisp hundred dollar bills to Holifield office. About the same time, Schmidt drafted a letter which Holifield sent to the Defense Department on behalf of a multi-million -dollar ITT contract proposal.

Holifield admitted in a House statement that he had signed the incriminating letter to the Pentagon, but both he and Schmidt denied any $500 payoff. However, we have evidence the money was left with a Holifield aide, who routinely accepted it for the congressman.

A steady stream of lobbyists, meanwhile, have worn a path on Holifield's carpet. They include Walter Phair, Kaiser Industries; Frank Rogers, Western Oil and Gas; Alan Nedry, Southern California Edison; Harry LeVine , General Electric; Albert Woodward, Flying Tiger Airline; Tom Bendorf, a former Lockheed lobbyist who later lobbied against no-fault insurance for the American Trial Lawyers; Howard Conner and John Vance, Pacific Gas and Electric.

My associate, Les Whitten called the congressman in Pico-Rivera, Calif., for his comments. "I have no remarks to make to you or anyone in your organization," snapped Holifield. "You can cease calling me." He then hung up the telephone.

Christmas Story -- Last Christmans, the American Mining Congress delivered four Christmas trees as gifts to the top Interior Department brass as evidence that trees grow on strip-mined land. Ralph Nader protested to the Civil Service Commission, which has finally finished its investigation. The commission found that Secretary Rogers Morton never got his Christmas tree. Undersecretary William Pecora received his tree but never used it. Assistant Secretary Hollis Dole put is up at home, and Mines Director Elburt Osborn mounted his at the office. In belittling the gifts, Interior reported that the trees, intended to show what bountiful growth is possible on strip-mined lands, were "extremely thin" and of "nominal value."

Our Error – In a recent column, we reported that the Pentagon motor pool's use of premium instead of regular gas was costing the taxpayers about $2 million a year. We have now determined this figure was grossly inflated. The actual amount wasted by the use of premium gasoline amounted to no more than about $5,000. We apologize for the miscalculation.

Mollenhoff's Back -- One of Washington's finest investigative reporters, Clark Mollenhoff, is back muckraking again after a benign tumor was removed from his brain. His latest book, "Strike Force," is hot off the press. It tells how the Justice Department has used 18 special strike forces to combat the godfather influence on the American political system. Mollenhoff claims the Justice Department has gotten off to a "commendable start" in the fight against organized crime.

Early Arms Pact Approval Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional leaders say they expect speedy ratification of the arms limitation agreements President Nixon brought home from the Moscow summit.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield and Republican leader Hugh Scott gave that assessment after they and a bipartisan group of 28 other House and Senate leaders were briefed on the accords Friday by Nixon and his national security adviser, Henry A. Kissinger.

Mansfield said he found the private briefing more persuasive than Nixon's nationally broadcast address to Congress Thursday night.

Excluded from the White House session, however, were all of the most vocal critics of the arms-limitation agreements.

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said he expects the accords to be presented formally to Congress next week.

There are two sections: one limiting the Soviet Union and the United States to current levels of offensive missiles, including those under construction. That must be endorsed by a simple majority of the House and Senate.

The other agreement limiting each nation to two defensive antiballistic missile installations needs two-thirds approval of the Senate.

Critics have warned that the accords could permit the Soviet Union to establish nuclear arms superiority over the United States.

But Scott said Nixon and Kissinger "made the point that we are militarily so strong as not to be endangered" by the arms curbs.

Jury Unaware Angela Drawn Into Hijacking

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Angela Davis was unwittingly dragged into a $500,000 skyjacking the day her murderk idnap-conspiracy trial went to the jury—but jurors deliberated for five hours never knowing of conflicting reports that four men were demanding her freedom.

The reports Friday, shortly after the jury received the case in the 13-week-old trial, brought the 28-year-old Miss Davis rushing back to the tightly guarded courthouse from a late lunch at a penthouse restaurant with her attorneys.

While Miss Davis sat in the chambers of Superior Court Judge Richard E. Arnason, a hijacker picked up $500,000 at San Francisco International Airport and took off. Western Airlines said the hijacker, a black man in an Army uniform, claimed to have three accomplices but the crew and passengers saw no one else.

The all-white jury of seven women and five men deliberated in a locked second-story room several hundred feet away, oblivious to the hijacking.

The report that Miss Davis was included in the hijackers' demands originated in Seattle, but later a variety of sources questioned this.

The jurors planned to return today to resume deliberations.

Less than an hour before the hijacking, Miss Davis showed up at a vigil outside the courthouse, chatted with friends and family on the grassy lawn and bounced a 4-month-old girl on her knee.

The Rev. Cecil Williams, pastor of Glide Memorial church in San Francisco and Miss Davis' spiritual advisor, said the vigil would continue throughout the jury's deliberations "as an expression of solidarity with Angela."

Miss Davis is accused of furnishing four guns and helping plot a courthouse escape attempt Aug. 7, 1970 in hopes of freeing the man she loved— Soledad Brother George Jackson. The escape failed, gunfire erupted and four were killed.

At the end of his instructions Friday, Arnason gave the jury 11 different printed forms and told them they could choose from 12 verdicts—five possible verdicts on both the murder and kidnap counts and two on the conspiracy count.

The judge told the jury they must reach a separate verdict on each count and said both Miss Davis and the prosecution have the right to "a just verdict regardless of what the consequences must be."

Dusty Old Family Portrait Found To Be Masterpiece

LONDON (AP) — Two sisters have discovered that a dusty old family portrait that has hung unnoticed in their home for 40 years is a Gainsborough masterpiece no one even knew existed, art experts said today.

The painting, valued by an unsuspecting insurance agent in the 1930s at only $2,600, may be worth as much as $338,000.

The sisters stumbled on the art treasure last week when they turned up the old insurance valuation as they cleared up the effects of their late father, Maj. J. Townshend.

They called Sotheby's, the British art dealers, about selling the three-foot square portrait. Sotheby's expert Andrew Festing made a routine check of the painting at the sisters' home in southeast England and discovered that it was actually a Gainsborough.

Sotheby's said the portrait," The Grosvenor Family," was an unrecorded masterpiece by the famed 18th century English artist and was painted before he began his famous landscape series.

"The discovery of such an important work by a great British artist is almost without precedent," a spokesman for the dealers said.

He said the painting is comparable to "Mr. and Mrs. Robert Andrews," considered by many experts to be Gainsborough's greatest work.

Sotheby's sold that portrait in 1960 for $338,000. It now hangs in London's National Gallery.

Two Networks Ordered To Give Chisolm Equal Time

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two television networks have been ordered to make equal time available to Rep. Shirley Chisholm to counter televised appearances of her two top rivals for the Democratic presidential nomination.

The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ordered the Federal Communications Commission Friday to direct the Columbia Broadcasting System to provide a half hour of prime time to Mrs. Chisholm by June 5, the day preceding the crucial June 6 California presidential primary.

And it directed the FCC to order the American Broadcasting Co. to include Mrs. Chisholm in its June 4 program of Issues and Answers or provide her with a half hour of prime time.

Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota and George McGovern of South Dakota have appeared together on shows telecast by CBS and the National Broadcasting Co. and they are scheduled guests Sunday on ABC's Issues and Answers program.

The FCC had turned down her request on grounds the Humphrey-McGovern appearances were not true debates. The agency said they were exempted from the equal-time rule as "bona fide news interviews."

The three-judge court overturned the FCC, saying the appearances were, indeed, debates.

Mayor Sam Yorty of Los Angeles, also a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, also appealed to the FCC, and was similarly turned down.

He had been turned down earlier by a San Francisco federal appeals court and later sent telegrams to the networks and FCC Chairman Dean Burch demanding that he be included in any equal time order for Mrs. Chisholm.

Mrs. Chisholm, who was campaigning in Linden, N.J., Friday, said of the court decision: "This kind of victory is so meaningful to me because ... I do not have the tremendous sums of money that people now seem to need to run for elective office in this country."

Downed U.S. Flier Rescued After Eluding Reds 23 Days

SAIGON (AP) — A U.S. Air Force pilot who for 23 days evaded North Vietnamese troops, some coming within 20 feet of his hideaway, was rescued by a fleet of planes and helicopters deep in enemy territory Friday.

"There didn't seem like much hope, but I never gave up," Capt. Roger C. Locher, 28, of Sabetha, Kan. said today after he was lifted out by 30 to 40 aircraft under a hail of enemy gunfire in steep mountainous terrain northwest of Hanoi.

Locher, who is credited with shooting down three North Vietnamese MIG interceptors, was shot down May 10 on his 407th combat mission. The second crewman aboard the F4 is missing, the Air Force said.

"I'm a little weak but I'll pick it back up," said Locher, whose weight dropped from 180 pounds to 150 during the ordeal.

"I shaved a couple of times for the hell of it," he said in a telephone interview from his Thailand base. "There was nothing else to do. I used a surgical knife from my survival kit. I was getting to look pretty sc rubby."

Locher still had several days growth of beard and a big grin when the rescue helicopter landed him at the base.

When Locher bailed out of his crippled Phantom, he kept moving.

"I ate assorted fruits from the trees and imagined they were steaks. I drank rain and stream water and imagined it was root beer. I was getting pretty hungry. But I never had any trouble sleeping, only when it rained."

Several times. Locher recalled, North Vietnamese troops got as close as 20 feet to his position but never detected him.

Locher could hear F4 jets screaming overhead as they streaked to their targets deep inside North Vietnam day after day.

Auditor's Office Hot GOP Discussion Issue

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Five Republican candidates for governor and lieutenant governor of Missouri faced questions from more than 300 persons at the Missouri Federation of Republican Women's convention Friday night.

The hottest issues were the possible loss of the state auditor's office to a Democrat and the St. Louis airport to Illinois.

Christopher Bond, state auditor, said he would appoint his successor if he is elected governor.

Disagreeing sharply was Rep. R.J. King Jr. of Clayton, also seeking the nomination for governor.

"Anyone holding an office could not be sworn in until they resigned their present office," King said. "No individual can hold two offices."

King said Gov. Warren E. Hearnes could appoint a Democrat as auditor between Bond's resignation and his being sworn in as governor.

Another gubernatorial candidate, Rep. Stephen Burns of Des Peres, said he understood the Democrats "have already bartered off who the auditor will be."

Bond pointed out that Hearnes did not resign as secretary of state before he was sworn in as governor for his first term. "When a man takes a second office, the first becomes vacant at that instant," he said. "At the instant I become governor, not before, the auditor's office would become vacant."

Two candidates for the nomination for lieutenant governor argued over the location for a proposed St. Louis airport. Joseph L. Badaracco, president of the St. Louis aldermen board, said he favored the Illinois site. Rep. William C. Phelps of Kansas City said "I can't imagine a lieutenant governor of Missouri promoting an airport in Illinois."

Badaracco said Missouri has not put up money or a more suitable site, and an Illinois location close to downtown St. Louis would be better than a distant Missouri site.

Phelps said, "I don't think we should lie down and let the major development in eastern Missouri in this decade go to Illinois."

Bond said the airport probably will go to Illinois because the Hearnes administration had made no plans to build one. "We are 10 years behind Illinois," Bond said. "It may be too late now."

Other candidates included Gene McNary, St. Louis County prosecutor, and Harvey F. Euge of St. Louis, both for governor; Rep. Marvin Kennon, Gregory Hansman of University City, and William B. Ewald, all for lieutenant governor.

McNary rejected the proposed state compensation for victims of violent crimes. He said he "real problem is to strengthen our justice system."

McNary suggested the state experiment with the welfare system.

Mr. And Mrs. Collins Will Live In Kentucky

Mrs. Michael Wesley Collins

The wedding of Rebecca Lynn Cummins and Michael Wesley Collins was solemnized in a candlelight ceremony May 16 at 7:30 p.m. at the Trinity Baptist church of Sikeston.

The bride is the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. George W. Cummins, Jr. of Sikeston and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley P. Collins of Cairo, Ga.

The father of the bride, the Rev. George W. Cummins, Jr., performed the double ring ceremony. He was assisted by the bride's grandfather, Dr. George W. Cummins of Atlanta.

Miss Sarah Beth Chatham, of Shelbyville, Ky., was soloist. She sang "One Hand, One Heart" prior to the ceremony, and "The Lord's Prayer" following the ceremony of the candles as the couple knelt at the altar. She was accompanied at the organ by Mrs. Lewis Conley of Sikeston.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of candlelight satin peau de soie created especially for her by her mother. The gown featured an Empire A-line silhouette with a Victorian neckline and sheer yoke of English illusion. The bodice and neckline were overlaid with hand-clipped imported re-embroidered Alencon lace and accented with tiny pearls. Points of the lace extended onto the sheer yoke and also on the skirt of her gown. The long sleeves of peau de soie were inlaid at the wrist with the same lace and fastened with tiny covered buttons and loops.

The back of her gown, with sheer yoke and lace bodice, was highlighted by two small bows of peau de soie, and closed with tiny covered buttons and loops. Matching hand-clipped re-embroidered Alencon lace with pearl accents encircled the skirt and completely edged the attached chapel length train.

The bride wore a matching headpiece of peau de soie, Alencon lace, and pearls fashioned for her by an aunt. A full length veil of imported silk illusion was attached. She carried a Colonial bouquet of white sweetheart roses interspersed with pale pink sweetheart roses and babysbreath.

Miss Sally Johnson of Hobson, Virginia, was maid of honor. The bridal attendants were Miss Cindy Cummins, sister of the bride, of Sikeston; Miss Sandy Pitzer of Hillsboro, Ohio; and Miss Glenda Robertson of Paducah, Ky.

Their floor-length dresses of pale pink crepe featured empire bodices with long sleeves. Pearl and irridescent trim accented the bodice neckline and sleeves of the dresses. They wore pearl-trimmed Juliet caps of matching pink crepe with attached fingertip veils of pale pink illusion. They carried a single long-stemmed deep pink rose with ribbon streamers.

Miss Jane Ellen Pinkstaff, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Pinkstaff of Sikeston, was flowergirl. She wore a floor-length dress of pale pink crepe with Empire bodice and short puffed sleeves. Her dress was accented by a deep pink picot edge velvet ribbon sash with matching bow and streamers in her hair. She carried a lace basket containing pale pink sweetheart roses and baby's breath.

The groom chose his nephew, Lewis Sumner of Cairo, as his best man. Groomsmen were Dave Barry of Cincinnati, Ohio; Stan Lafferty of Bedford, Indiana; and Dale Morgan, cousin of the bride, of LaGrange, Ky.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church parlor. Serving guests at the reception were Mrs. Davis Morgan, Mrs. M. C. Pitts, and Mrs. John McKenzie, all aunts of the bride.

Miss Chyrl Curry of Sikeston attended the guest book, and presented scrolls containing the ceremony of the candles to guests as they arrived.

Miss Pamela McKenzie, cousin of the bride, passed rice bags to guests at the reception.

Out of town guests for the wedding included Mrs. Eugene Morgan, Middletown, Kentucky and Mrs. George W. Cummins, Atlanta, both grandmothers of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Davis Morgan, LaGrange, Ky.; Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Pitts, Middleton, Ky. David and Pamela McKenzie, Louisville; Mr. and Mrs. Wesley P. Collins, Mrs. Ruth Collins, Mrs. Howard Sumner, all of Cairo, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Bishop and Richard, Tallahassee, Fla.; and Leslie E. Cook, Washington, D. C.

The bride graduated from Georgetown College, Georgetown, Ky. this year. She majored in elementary education and is a member of Sigma Kappa social sorority. She will teach in Corinth, Ky. in the fall.

The groom is a pre-med student at Georgetown College. He will graduate in 1973 with a major in biology and a minor in chemistry.

Following their honeymoon trip, the couple will reside at The Old Georgetown Apartments, 1122 Pawnee Trail, Georgetown, Ky.

Ann Landers

Parents Disapprove Of Grad's Salutation

Dear Ann Landers: Some cats who read this will think it's a phony letter but any kind who is strung out on drugs will know it's on the level. And that's the kid I want to reach.

I started with pot -- a little harmless smoking. Potheads laugh when they hear the squares say grass leads to stronger stuff. I laughed too, but I must admit that's the way it was with me. The second step was "only an experiment." I wanted to see how much acid I could drop before I blew my mind or it blew me. I was cool, man, like shaping up for a moon shot. I got everything together and then I called a buddy to sit with me in case I hit a bummer. This is the unwritten law for acid-heads. You gotta come when a buddy calls. The sitter smokes pot but he doesn't join you in needle art.

What happened in the next 24 hours I'll never know for sure but I woke up in a hospital. I got too much LSD on the second quirt. I ran out of the place onto the roof, trying to fly. Finally I crashed through a skylight. I t took me three days to get it all together. Even then I wasn't sure who I was or what had happened. I made up my mind that God had given me a second chance to live. It was like coming back from the dead. I swore never to touch another needle, a cigaret, a pill, or apipe, and to tell my story whereever I could get an audience of one. Thanks, Ann--Reborn In Omaha

Dear Omaha: Your audience today is slightly larger. Would you believe 54 million? Thanks for telling your story.

Dear Ann Landers: Several months ago our son married a girl we were not very fond of, but we made up our minds to accept her and we have done so. Jeff and his wife live 700 miles from here. Before they moved, Jeff promised that he or his wife would write us a short letter every week instead of spending money on the long distance telephone.

They have kept their word. I would like to know, however, why a 22-year-old college graduate would start a letter to her in-laws with "Hello" and close with "So long for now." Can you explain this, please? My husband and I are baffled. - Riverside Readers

Dear Riv: It's obvious the girl is evading the traditional "Dear ———" because you are not dear to her and she is letting you know it. Her casual close is a devise for skirting the customary sentimental sign-off.

I hope the relationship improves, for your son's sake. I can feel the Arctic breezes from here.

Dear Ann Landers: You sometimes change your advice when your readers convince you you've made a mistake. I hope you will reconsider your answer to the woman who asked if she should tell her best friend that her husband is cheating.

I think it's stinking for the wife to be kept in ignorance while everyone else is whispering behind her back. What kind of friendship is it to keep your eyes covered, your eyes plugged and your mouth shut?

A friend of mine has been cheated on like crazy for three months. Her husband is a doctor and he is having an affair with the nurse in his office. Everyone knows it but the man's wife. I haven't told her because my husband has made me promise I wouldn't. He says you are against telling the wife, too. Please change your views, Ann. I want to tell her as an act of kindness.--Des Moines

Dear D.M.: Don't do her any favors. It's a hundred-to-one bet she knows and is playing dumb so she can hold her head up. Permit her this dignity.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How To Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, self addressed envelope to this newspaper.

Wed In Water

EPERNAY, France (AP) — Mayor Bernard Stasi married two couples Thursday night at the bottom of the Epernay swimming pool.

The wedding party donned skin diving outfits and the vows were exchanged with printed signs. the couples are members of the local skin diver's club.

Births

BROOKS — Mr. and Mrs. Donald Brooks of Advance are the parents of their first child, a son, born Thursday at 3:56 p.m. in the Missouri Delta Community Hospital. He weighed seven pounds, 12 and one half ounces, and has been named Christopher Lee.

Mrs. Brooks is the former Sue Bess, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Bess, Chaffee. Brooks is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wade Brooks of Advance. He is employed by Reutzel Construction Co.

Water Bed For Labor

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Expectant mothers at a San Jose hospital are enthusiastic about the latest piece of equipment in the maternity ward — a waterbed.

"We haven't had any trouble in getting women to use it," said Dr. Robert Goodlin, associate director of obstetrics at Valley Medical Center.

The $1,000 was designed to help ease labor pains and has been in use for two weeks.

When delivery begins the patient is moved to a convention, firm delivery bed.

An unexpected child can really rock the cradle.

Don't get us wrong.
We think children are priceless, too.
But if a child happens to be unplanned, it could mean financial pressures.
You see, a child is not just an extra mouth to feed. It's a whole other life to be provided for.
And that takes money.
Fact is, the cost to raise a child to age 18 ran around $25,000 (more for some, less for others, dependent on family income) in the mid-60's. And what inflation will do to the cost in the future is anybody's guess!
But no matter what the amount is, it's easy to see that the cost of rearing children is an economic reality one can't ignore. That is, if each child is to get what he or she deserves.
Which is why we advise every couple to plan how many children they want. And when they want them: when they can be a welcome addition rather than an accidental burden.
Because, as we all know, it's awfully hard to give with a full heart when one's pockets are empty.

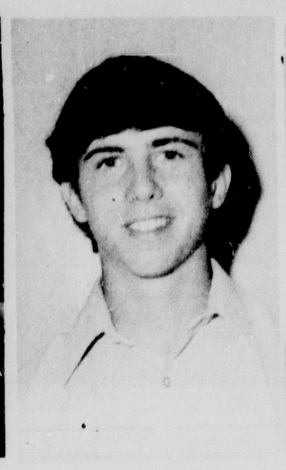
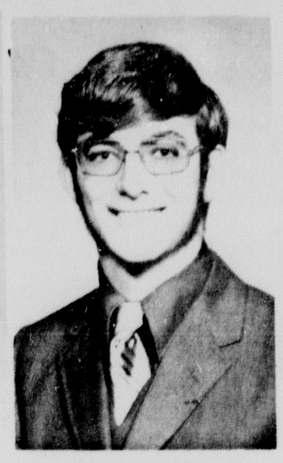
SEMO All-Staters

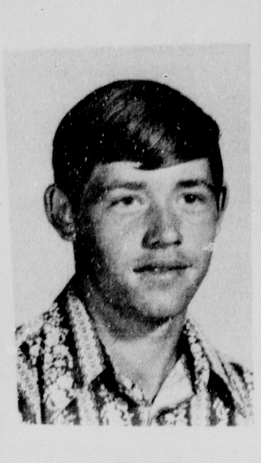
Mike Morrow



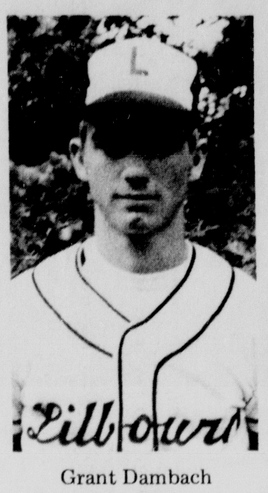
Steve Volkerding



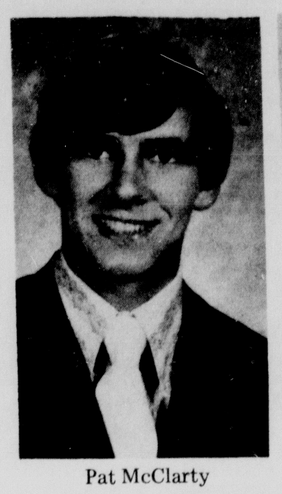
Parker Morgan



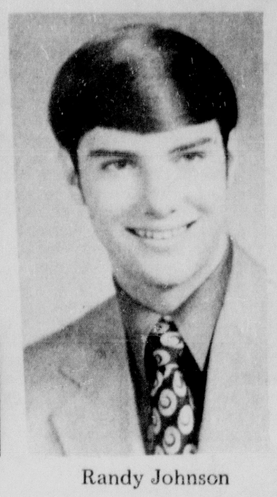
Dell Walker



Grant Dambach



Pat McClarty



Randy Johnson

Lilbourn, Bernie, Hayti Stars

The Missouri Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association has selected the top 21 high school baseball players for all-state recognition. Nearly 3,000 athletes competed in the sport throughout the state.

Lafayette's Mike Umfleet and Springfield Hillcrest's Bob Detherage were unanimous choices for the shortstop and outfield positions.

Among those 21 stars were seven Southeast Missourians. Three were named to the first team and four for the second. An additional 17 SEMO athletes received honorable mention.

Cape Girardeau Central and Lilbourn, two pre-season favorites to represent the district in the state tournament, had two players each selected. Both teams struggled late in the campaign and bowed out in sub-district play.

Steve Volkerding was picked as a first team outfielder. Teammate Randy Johnson got the nod as the second team left handed pitcher.

Lilbourn's Pat McClarty was a repeater in the outfield and Grant Dambach was the second team shortstop.

Mike Morrow, Kelly second baseman, and Parker Morgan, Hayti catcher were first team picks. Bernie's Dell Walker was the second team first sacker.

Descriptions of the all-staters and the honorable mentions:

FIRST TEAM

MIKE MORROW — Mike Morrow terminates a successful high school baseball career. The second baseman has had 45 appearances at the plate and has only been struck out twice, both times in regional play against Lafayette. our home runs, 15 runs batted in and 21 hits are among the achievements of the Kelly High School player. Morrow has excelled in baseball and basketball. In baseball he has a .467 batting average and holds a position on the first all-state team.

STEVE VOLKERDING — With one year of high potential, Cape Girardeau Central's talented outfielder has given an remarkable showing so far. Volkerding has used his effectiveness at the plate and his performance record in the field to attain election to the all-district team and on to receive all-state appointment to the first team. Volkerding connected for 19 hits in 48 attempts to form his .408 batting percentage. His achievements include four doubles, one triple, and three homers. He is credited with 16 runs scored and 21 runs batted in.

PARKER MORGAN — Hayti's senior catcher Morgan should be acknowledged as a fantastic player. Ending a successful high school hitch this year, his performance has been exceptional gaining him all-district recognition. Going to the plate 51 times he has accomplished nine singles, eight doubles, and six home runs to form his .451 batting average. Morgan let only one stolen base slip by him. His evasiveness on the bases accounts for 13 stolen bases. He has scored 21 runs and has batted in 32 for the Tigers.

SECOND TEAM

DELL WALKER — The fiery hurler and infielder for the Bernie Mules has given an outstanding performance. The junior has shared the bulk of the pitching with Chuck Owens for the Mules but is chosen for his excellent record on first base and his batting percentage. Earlier he received all-district honors. From the plate he has accomplished a batting average of .401.

GRANT DAMBACH — With one more highly expectant year to play for the Lilbourn, Dambach is one of the hopeful leaders for next year's squad. Recognized as the best fielding shortstop in the southern portion of this area from south of Sikeston the robust junior has great range and an excellent arm. At bat 37 times, he has made good 16 hits. His achievements include 14 runs scored and 10 RBIs, with a .432 batting percentage. He leads his team in this and in runs scored.

PAT MCCLARTY — A successful season has returned Lilbourn's left-handed outfielder to the all-state second team. The talented fielder, moundsman, and batter is a veteran of last year's all-state second team and of the all-district team. He has come back this year batting .400 by connecting for 14 hits, three doubles, one homer and ten singles, in 36 attempts. McClarty has contributed 13 runs scored and chalked up 12 RBIs. His fielding for the Lilbourn Panthers has been more than satisfactory and he has shown promise on the mound.

RANDY JOHNSON — The strong pitching arm of Cape Girardeau Central's southpaw led him to the all-district selection and now has carried him all the way to the selection to the all-state second team. Throughout his high school career he has been one of the notable players for the Tigers and has established a reputation as one of the hottest pitchers. Supporting a 6-1 record in his 48 innings of play, Johnson has held the opposition to 11 runs, three earned, and only allowed 24 hits. His achievements include 93 strikeouts.

Honorable Mention

INFIELDERS.....

ERIC LITTELL — Attracting a lot of attention this year, Littell is one of the area's foremost catchers and is equally skilled at the plate. A senior at Gideon High School, Littell was selected to the all-district team and has gained all-state honors. He has gone to bat 31 times and connected for 13 hits, four homers, and an additional 14 runs batted in. Ending a successful season and a active high school career he has a .419 batting percentage.

TED CARBAUGH — Illmo-Scott City High School's second baseman Carbaugh, carried this season's achievements to gaining election to the first team all-district and on to being honored on the all-state level. A leading player for the Rams, he is credited with 12 hits, including one triple and three doubles, from 36 attempts. Ending his high school baseball competition, he has finished on a favorable note having a batting average of .389.

MITCHELL ALLEN — Lilbourn's right-handed third baseman Allen, has gained a reputation as one of the outstanding players in the area. Going to bat 41 times, he made good 17 of his efforts, scoring 10 runs and batting in 11 in the process. He was the leading man this season for the Panthers in hits and boasts a batting percentage of .422. A junior this year, he shows a great deal of potential for next year.

RICK EISENBACH — Sophomore shortstop Eisenbach has been chosen from the Sikeston squad for all-state honors. Effective in his position and a hard man to catch when it comes to stealing bases, he has only been charged with two errors all season and is responsible for stealing nine bases, only being thrown out once. His record at the plate includes a batting percentage of .320 and 20 hits from his attempts. He shows great potential.

JOHN LEIBLE — Another sophomore baseballer whose great potential is John Leible. This season he has been a key man at the plate and is considered one of the better catchers. On the basis of his catching ability and his excellent batting record he has been honored on the all-conference team, all-district, and all-state honorable mention. At bat, he has received credit for 22 hits including one home run. He represents the Sikeston squad with a .390 batting average.

(OUTFIELDERS)

DAVE REIMINGER — Jackson High School's outstanding outfielder Reiminger, has battled to the all-district nomination and to all-state honors. A senior he has shown his skill in fielding and at the plate. His batting percentage is .321.

MIKE GARRARD — Batting .360 this season, Garrard had become one of themost valuable players for the Parma Pirates. The senior outfielder proved to be a blockade in the field. His performance at the plate was impressive as he was a leader in that department.

PITCHERS

JEFF JACKSON — The pitching prodigy from Kelly High School ended the season with a 9-1 record. He was chosen for all-district earlier. The sophomore allowed only four earned runs and 32 base hits during his 64-inning career while throwing out 100 men. Jackson has abatting average of .340.

MIKE HILL — The senior moundsman for the Puxico Indians was elected to the all-district second team. Closing out a high school career, he boasts a 5-1 season record. In 56 innings he has struck out 99 men, giving up eight hits. Supporting an estimated .35 earned run average, Hill has given up three earned runs and three unearned. His performance at the plate has been amazing, with his batting percentage reaching the .600 mark. With 20 times at bat he connected for three singles, three doubles, three triples, and thre home runs.

CHUCK OWENS — The high school pitcher's pitching ability for two years has been in the spotlight. He has received the distinction of being an all around fine player in every position on the Bernie squad. Owens finished the season with a .389 batting average.

The Scottsdale, Ariz., Cowboys won the midget division (90 to 125 pounds) title in Pop Warner Junior League football last season.

City League

Bank Blanks Brothers Club , 21-0

Andy Rogers' two-hit pitching and Bank of Sikeston's 23-hit attack paved the way for the Bankers' 21-0 shutout over Brothers Club in the Musial League opener. Standridge homered and tripled and with Blanton, Spring, Rogers, Williams, and Dodd, collected three hits.

Robert Howard picked up the loss for the Brothers and had the teams' only two hits.

In the nightcap, home runs from Kingsway's Crenshaw and Abshere highlighted the Plaza's 10-1 win over Nunnelee. Chappell picked up the one-hit victory. Glaus took the loss.

Police picked up a three-hit, 8-0 shutout over Jenkins in American League play last night. Ziegler's home run and Grant's triple, double, and single paced the winners' nine-hit attack.

Blanton picked up the win. Shaner suffered the loss.

Close contests marked play in both National League battles last night as Pizza Inn dumped Legion, 5-3, and the Lions beat Lewis, 7-5, at Puckett Field.

Pizza Inn halted a last inning, one-run rally with the tying and winning runs on base to collect the opening win. Love paced the Inn with two hits. Marks picked up the win from the mound.

Lions sent four runners home in the fifth inning to take command of the nightcap and collected the 7-5 victory. Brashear and Dement powered the Lions with two hits each.

Vaught collected the win, Francis the loss.

Davis and Byrd battered IBEW in Junior Babe Ruth play with a 21-7 decision at V.F.W. Stadium. A seven-run last inning capped D and B's scoring spree. D and B outhit IBEW, 8-7. Shell and Stokes each collected two hits and scored two runs. for the winners.

Keller went the distance. Cobb received the loss.

Cloud Seeding May Come In Missouri

JEFFERSON CITY' Mo. -- A Missouri ad hoc committee on weather modification has been appointed, reports Commissioner of agriculture Dexter Davis. The committee, acting in an advisory capacity, will study and make recommendations on weather modification operations in the state as a weapon against farm losses due to drought, Davis said.

Cordell Tindall of Fayette, editor of Missouri Ruralist, was named chairman of the committee that consists of L.C. Carpenter, MFA, Columbia; C.R. Johnston, Missouri Farm Bureau Federation, Jefferson City; Don Hill NFO, Phillipsburg; David Sutton, Area Development Agent, St. Joseph; Davis; J. Vernon Martin, U.S. Soil Conservation Service, Columbia; Paul Viehl, farmer, Mexico; J.P. Carmen, Missouri Agri-Industries Council , Paris; Dave Horner, National Weather Service, Columbia; Cliff Summer, Water Resources Board, Jefferson City; Larry Ehlert, business man, St. Joseph; and Wayne Decker, Atmospheric Science Department, University of Missouri, Columbia.

According to the Commissioner, the committee is an outgrowth of an initial Southern Great Plains Weather Modification Conference held at Oklahoma City in October 1971 that was attended by several Missourians, including a representative of the Department of Agriculture;

This past April an interstate weather modification conference was again conducted at Oklahoma City, at which Governor David Hall officially signed Oklahoma House Bill No. 1526, known as "Oklahoma Weather Modification Act," and presented copies of the bill to those in attendance as a sample piece of legislation for other states represented -- Arizona, Colorado, Iowa, Kansas, New Mexico, Missouri and Texas -- to follow. The Oklahoma bill sets up rules providing for the regulation of weather modification operations and for powers and duties of the Department of Agriculture in carrying out the operations.

Cloud seeding by planes has been successful in bringing rain to parched areas of Southwest Oklahoma. When planes spewed chemicals into a towering storm front near Altus, Okla. last September, the action resulted in 10 inches of rain in an area where only a total of 24.61 inches fell in 1971. The state has been granted a $225,000 federal weather modification contract this year to increase rain over eight counties in the dust bowl.

"Missouri farmers and related agri-business leaders view this Oklahoma research and legislation as a great step toward relieving drought situations," Commissioner Davis declared. "The project was presented to Governor Warren E. Hearnes and he quickly agreed that Missouri should plan to utilize all advancement in weather modification to alleviate water shortages in the state. He immediately appointed

BLOOMFIELD — Now is a good gime to take inventory to see what your prospects for pasture during the dry summer and early fall seasons will be. As you know, we cannot expect too much from permanent pastures during this period. Both milk production and beef cattle gains are usually quite discouraging where we rely on permanent pastures for dry-season grazing.

Providing some good supplementary grazing during the dry summer and early fall will pay off in two ways. First, this supplementary grazing will result in much higher production of both meat and milk than would be produced by permanent pasture. In the second place, giving permanent pastures a rest while supplementary pastures are being grazed during the dry summer and early fall will allow permanent pastures to build up reserves, which, in turn, will result in more winter grazing from permanent pastures than would be the case if cattle stayed on them during this period.

Several farmers in this area seed lespedeza in their wheat, and lespedeza, if available, will provide excellent pasture during the dry summer season. This is especially important for beef cattle as lespedeza will produce better beef gains during the dry summer weather than any other crop produced in the area.

Sudan, including sudan hybrids and sorghum-sudan crosses, are also excellent supplementary pasture crops for summer and early fall use. In fact, it has proven to be the best supplementary pasture for beef cattle in cases where sufficient lespedeza will not be available for summer and early fall grazing. Sudan is a good supplementary pasture crop from several standpoints. It is well adapted to a wide range of soil types. It has a unique ability to do well on thin upland soils especially when adequate fertilizer is used. It will provide grazing within 30 to 45 days from seeding. It provides lots of grazing even under dry weather conditions. Under ordinary weather conditions, sudan, if properly managed, can be expected to support two mature cows per acre. In many cases it has been known to carry as many as three cows per acre.

If you plan to seed some sudan for supplementary grazing this summer, now is a good time to do this job. Sudan should be seeded by the end of the first week in June for maximum production. Seedings made later than this cannot usually be expected to produce as much grazing. Soil preparation for sudan should be similar to that normally made for corn. Sudan should be fertilized about like corn including the use of 60 to 100 pounds of nitrogen per acre with phosphate and potash being applied accordingly to soil needs as determined by a soil test. The seed should be drilled to about a one inch depth at the rate of 25 to 30 pounds of seed per acre.

Certified seed of either the Piper or Greenleaf varieties is recommended. Other sudan grasses including sudan hybrids and sorghum-sudangrass crosses generally contain higher levels of prussic acid than Piper or Greenleaf. However, in University of Missouri yield trials most commercially available sudangrass hybrids or sorghum-sudan hybrids,equalled or exceeded yields of Piper or Greenleaf.

Pearl Millet is a warm season annual that may be used for the same purposes as sudangrass. It will not form prussic acid, so it can be grazed safely at any stage of growth. It is more productive in hot, dry conditions but less productive in cool, moist conditions than sudangrass. Gahi-1 is the recommended variety. Cultural practices for pearl millet are about the same as for sudangrass. It should be seeded after normal corn planting time when the soil temperaturesare above 60 degrees F. Fertilizer recommendations for this crop are the same as for sudangrass. Rate of seeding should be about 20 pounds per acre.

Steps taken now to provide good supplementary grazing for beef cattle and dairy herds will pay good dividends later on when pastures are short.

Good Pastures Assist Beef Production

Missouri is developing into a major beef producing state. The increase in our cattle numbers is partly due to better pasture management.

Through pasture improvement and proper management the pounds of beef produced per acre has increased.

The main thing is to have enough cattle to use the forage produced but still not overgraze the area. Grasses need a rest period in between grazing to regain their growth.

This may be achieved through the use of three or four pasture fields of about the same size. The field size can be adjusted by using either temporary or permanent cross fences. The cattle can graze one field for several days while the other fields regain their growth.

The use of cross fences is also helpful if only a part of a pasture system needs to be replanted. The fences allow grazing on old pastures while the new field becomes established.

In the winter months when the grass is short of dormant, any excess forage stockpiled from the prior growing season can be fed as hay. In the dry summer months when grass is short hay can be fed, or supplemental pastures can be used, to prevent overgrazing.

To produce the greatest yields and maintain good pastures it is important to topdress at least once a year. If the pasture grasses are mixed with legumes the use of nitrogen may not be necessary. To select the proper fertilizer balance a soil test should be taken about every three to five years.

Brush and weeds in pastures can be controlled by mowing once or twice a year.

The proper location of a good water supply will also improve pasture useage. Soil Conservation Service will help farmers figure out the test system.

KILLINGS ON RISE

CHICAGO (AP) — A University of Chicago study shows that killings with guns increased 169 per cent in Chicago between 1965 and 1970.

Herbicides Control Weeds

By JOE H. SCOTT
State Extension Agronomist

PORTAGEVILLE -- Most soybean growers in Southeast Missouri are preparing to use a preemergence herbicide to hold down annual grasses and broadleaf weeds. This is a good practice. There are problems with large seeded weeds germinating too deep for preemergence weed killers to give effective control. The problem weeds that get the most attention are cocklebur, morningglory and velvet leaf (wild cotton).

Rotation of crops in the Bootheel would keep these weeds in check. Rotation is difficult to accomplish with large soybean acreage. Cultivation or postemergence weed killers or a combination of the two control troublesome broadleaf pests.

Several postemergence herbicides give effective control of cocklebur and morning glory at the Delta Center.

Remember that timing is important when using postemergence weed killers. The height of the soybeans and weeds have to be considered to control the weeds and avoid injuring the soybeans.

Dinoseb (dinitro) as well as Dyanap and Ancrack which contain dinoseb can be applied when beans are in the soil cracking stage to before soybean true leaves open. Dinoseb can also be used as a directed postemergence treatment when soybeans reach a height of 5 to 6 inches. Dinoseb should be directed toward the base of the soybean plant to wet the weeds as much as possible. Avoid spraying higher than 1/2 the height of the bean plant. Also, do not use after soybeans begin to bloom. Dinoseb is a good contact killer but can injure soybeans if label precautions are not followed.

2,4-DB (Butyrac 175 and Butoxone SB) will also control cocklebur and morningglory. Direct 2,4-DB to lower part of soybean plant when soybeans are 8 to 12 inches tall. The use of a preemergence herbicide will aid in gaining a height difference between weeds and soybeans, as best results are obtained if weeds are not over 3 inches high.

Linuron (Lorox) plus surfactant at a 1/2 lb. rate will give control of cocklebur and other wees if applied when conditions are favorable for good weed growth. Direct spray on weeds after soybeans reach 8 inches high and to the base of the plant. Do not spray too high or over the top of soybeans.

2,4-DB can aso be used as an emergency or salvage operation after cockleburs have outgrown the soybeans, and to keep from further reducing the yield. Use no more than 0.2 lbs. per acre of the amine form. Apply when the first buds start to form but not after mid-bloom. Injury may result if applied when beans are under drouth stress.

Weeds are easier to kill when they are small and don't let go to seed if at all possible.

Certification Deadline Nears

NEW MADRID — July 3, is the final date for the certification of a farmer's 1972 plantings and set- aside. At certification time, a farmer will need to make an accurate certification of his plantings of cotton, wheat, corn, milo, barley, soybeans and, or any other planted crop. He will need to certify accurately the acreage of set- aside and state the land use of set- aside on each farm.

HERBERT EDWARDS plants cotton as Aaron Walker follows the planting with a spray for broad-leaf weed control. Herbert Schuerenberg, farm manager says that the seed undergoes many preparations before and during planting. First, acid is used to remove fuzz then the seed is treated with fungicides. During planting the seeds are sprinkled with another seed fungicide to promote germination and covered with a systemic insecticide to control thrips, aphids and mites. The planting is on the Robert Matthews farm, one mile south of Sikeston.

Food-Stamp Plan Bonus Rural Development Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's $2-billion-a-year foodstamp program, aimed primarily at helping feed needy families, also is turning into one of the Agriculture Department's most effective rural development programs.

According to studies made of food-stamp operations in three predominantly rural counties in Tennessee, Iowa and New Mexico, each $1 spent in federal funds generated between $1.20 and $1.68 in additional local business.

Qualified families buy food stamps at fees based on their incomes and number of members. Then, under a formula, additional stamps or bonuses are given free to help increase purchasing power at retail food stores.

Nationally, a participant gets about $10 worth of food stamps for each $4.50 he spends on them.

The food-stamp study, published in a report by the Economic Research Service, was based on operations during 1970 in Haywood County, Tenn.; Appanoose County, Iowa; and Chaves, County, N.M.

"In each county," the report said, "the wholesaling sector had to increase its output to provide additional inputs to the food retailing sector. Suppliers to the wholesaling sector, in turn, had to increase their output."

The effect was a pyramiding of goods and services needed to supply the increase demand for more and improved food for the stamp clients, officials said.

Some of the findings:

—In Tennessee, between $1.20 and $1.26 worth of additional business was generated by every $1 worth of bonus stamps spent. Food stamps in Haywood County were equal only to 6 per cent of total household income but represented one-third of all food sales and nearly 10 per cent of all retail trade.

—As a result of stamps in Chaves County, N.M., 59 jobs were added to the economy and each bonus food dollar generated $1.57 to $1.68 worth of new wealth. Food stamps represented about 5 per cent of the county's total retail food sales.

—In Iowa, the program added 11 new jobs to the Appanoose County economy and produced $1.40 worth of new business for each $1 in stamp bonuses.

During 1970 bonus stamps in the three counties amounted to: Haywood $1.2 million; Appanoose $184,000; and Chaves $870,500.

Nationally, in March of this year, about 11.5 million persons participated in the food-stamp program

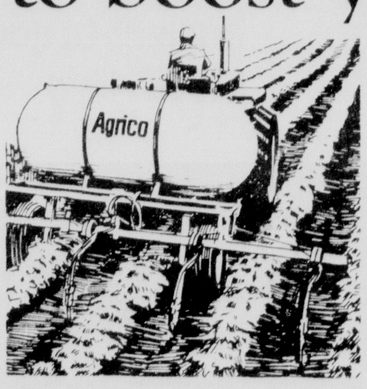
Sidedress Agrico Ammonia now... your last chance to boost yields



Now that your crops are planted, it's time to think about sidedressing them with Agrico anhydrous ammonia. There's no better way to supply nitrogen now than a sidedress application of Agrico ammonia.

With your crop up and beginning to grow, you might even say that this is your last chance to give your crop the extra nourishment boost that nitrogen can supply. Maybe you weren't able to give your crops all the nitrogen you wanted to apply earlier this spring. There's still time for an Agrico ammonia sidedressing.

Don't miss this last chance to apply extra nitrogen.

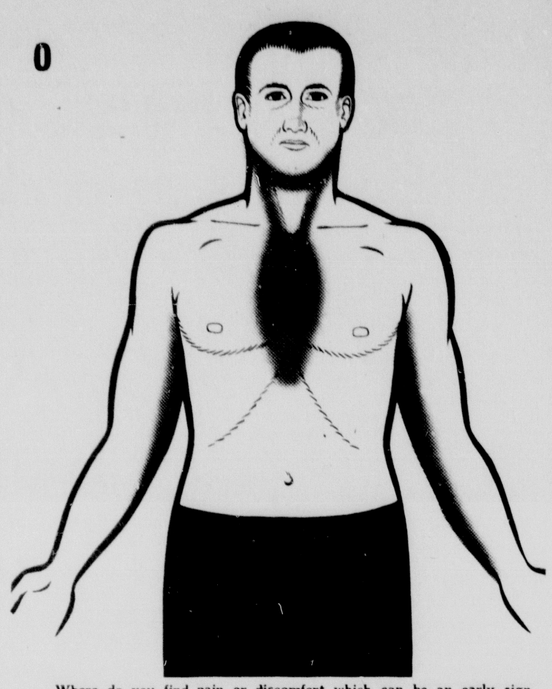
The Prayer
from
The Upper Room

Whosoever therefore shall humble himself as this little child, the same is greatest in the kingdom of heaven. (Matthew 18:4)

PRAYER: Heavenly Father, I come to Thee in childlike trust. I know that Thou wilt guide me, protect me, and love me every step of the way. My heart is filled with gratitude for the Master Teacher's assurance that we may look to Thee and say, "Our Father." Amen.



Where do you find pain or discomfort which can be an early sign of heart attack? Certainly in the center of the chest, where the heart is located, "under the necktie." But also, as sketched on the drawing, in the arms, jaws, neck or abdomen. Heart attack warning signs can occur in any, or all, of these areas. Most common combination is chest and arms, followed by chest, neck and jaws.

Heart Signs Meet Approval

CAPE GIRARDEAU — "Early attention can mean prevention."

A nationally known physician, Dr. Willard Krehl, made that statement during a 1967 visit to Missouri, when planning first began for an early warning signs public education project now underway to reach heart attack victims in a rural - urban area with a population of a million.

The quotation could be a theme for the project, which is financed by Heart Association funding.

"Heart attacks don't just happen," said Dr. Krehl at that time, "they develop."

As planners developed the program, they wondered what problems would develop for physicians and hospitals.

After the project had been in operation 30 days, questionnaires were sent to doctors and hospital officials, with these results --

Of the doctors who responded, 85 per cent indicated approval of early warning messages provided by newspapers, radio and TV stations; 9.5 per cent indicated degrees of disapproval; 94 per cent did not find the program had overloaded them or their staffs, and 83 per cent considered the program to be of merit.

More than half of the 37 hospitals in the area covered by the project responded and of these, 97 per cent said facilities had not been overloaded. About a third reported an increase in heart patient admissions.

(Heart attack admissions vary so much from week to week, project planners pointed out, that a patient record survey comparison for six months to a year before and after the program began will be required for a definitive finding.)

One hospital reported that during the project's first week, 37 patients with chest pains were seen in the emergency room, with a third admitted with actual or suspected heart attacks. In the week before the program, the hospital had seen 27 such patients, of which one-fourth had been admitted.

The program "is working," declared the reporting nurse. She added that facilities had not been overloaded; that patient anxiety had not been excessive.

One physician, a heart attack patient himself, reported on the questionnaire that "having experienced acute coronary thrombosis personally, the animated presentation of points of discomfort, pain, etc., was very real."

Patients' comments, as quoted by physicians responding to the questionnaire, included --

"They feel that the messages are helpful and educational."

"Observed heart program, need checkup."

"Surprised that symptoms could be so extensive."

"Didn't know there were such varied symptoms."

"Now I am worried about pains I took for granted as nothing."

"I wouldn't have known the pain might be serious."

Planners of the Missouri Heart Association project view it as a tribute to the power of the press.

One physician recalled a 1967 newspaper story, quoting a speech he made to a Heart Association dinner and mentioning heart attack warning signs.

Instead of colleagues scolding him for seeking publicity or scaring the public, as he feared, he encountered four persons on the subsequent weekend who had read the warning signs and wondered if they were experiencing them.

They were, it turned out, and quick treatment prevented heart damage.

Another physician noted on a survey questionnaire that "patient comments about this program certainly show that people do read the newspaper."

"I was quite impressed with the newspaper articles," said Mrs. Hazel Kohring, a St. Louis life insurance official and chairman of the Missouri Heart Association Public Education Committee. "Certainly the press is going all out to help with the Early Warning Signs."

Importance of the repetition which radio and TV are giving to the messages also is emphasized by the Early Warning Signs Physician's Advisory Committee.

One physician told of one of his patients, who had been briefed carefully about warning signs, but still nearly lost his life because of hesitation in calling for aid when an attack came. The doctor said he hoped such incidents would be ended by repetition of early warning signs to alert high risk patients, as well as the general public, to seek prompt medical aid, for a better chance of recovery.

The project, with two-year funding of $21,000, is geared to reduce the delay of decision time before a heart attack patient recognizes warning signs and/or gets medical aid. One six-month survey showed this to average 18 hours, compared with the first four hours critical for a heart attack victim.

A three-year statistical study will monitor the program to determine --

What public education works best with various age and schooling levels;

How to handle telephone calls to expedite care, giving priorities to emergencies;

The best methods of patient transportation;

Safe distances heart attack victims can travel;

Where initial care can best be given;

If doctor and patient decision time is cut by early warning signs education.

Beneficial side effects of the education drive get this prognosis:

Improvement of ambulance service;

More prompt and effective emergency room treatment;

Better facilities for subsequent care;

Improved ability of health professionals to recognize early warning signs so nurses and receptionists, for instance, can expedite emergency calls.

The project lists the symptoms as pressure, fullness, squeezing or aching in the front of the chest, where the heat is located; in the arms, neck, jaw, back, or abdomen, with possible shortness of breath, sweating, nausea, or vomiting.

Recognition of, and reaction to, these early warning signs of a heart attack, says the Missouri Heart Association, can fulfil Dr. Krehl's 1967 slogan --

"Early attention can mean prevention.'

Dentist Must Be Ready For Gulp

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Dr. Pullum was a very proper and straight-laced individual as far as dentists went. But one of his prettier patients insisted that he went too far, one afternoon, when he sat in her lap. Actually, the incident was more unfortunate than it was compromising. It seemed that while Dr. Pullum was drilling away in his attractive young patient's mouth, she suddenly swallowed at a very inopportune moment. The result? The dentist lost his balance, his drill slipped off her tooth cutting her gum and he landed in her lap.

Apologies, needless to say, did not suffice. Taking a dim view of the incident, the comely young patient sued the harassed dentist for his injuring her mouth and for sitting in her lap.

"What happened," pleaded Dr. Pullum in court, "wasn't my fault and it wasn't her fault. It was just one of those freakish things. Just when she swallowed, I was teethering over her teeth. She simply swallowed at the wrong time. Surely, the court's not going to swallow that."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make Dr. Pullum pay for his patient's injuries and for landing in her lap?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that a dentist must anticipate swallowing since everyone does it; that he must maintain his balance so that a patient's involuntary movement doesn't land him in his patient's lap.

Employment Rises In April

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri's employment rose 12,100 to a total of 1,937,900 in April, Employment Security Director Herman Julien reported today.

The total was 31,500 below the number employed in Apri last year. Nonfarm wage and salaried employment accounted for 11,000 of the additional jobs.

Julien attributed the April boost to seasonal increases in construction and services.

Missouri's rate of unemployment in April was 5 per cent, compared with 5.2 per cent in March and in April, 1971. The work force increased by 9,500 but there were 4,000 fewer unemployed.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Saturday, June 3, the 155th day of 1972. There are 211 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1940, the Allied evacuation from France was completed in World War II. Some 337,000 British, French and Belgian troops had been transported to England.

On this date:

In 1621, the Dutch West India Company received a charter for New Netherlands—now New York.

In 1808, Confederate President Jefferson Davis, was born in what is now Todd County in Kentucky.

In 1935, the French liner Normandie broke speed records on her maiden voyage, crossing the Atlantic in 4 days, 11 hours.

In 1937, the Duke of Windsor married Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson of Baltimore in France.

In 1942, Japanese planes raided Dutch Harbor, Alaska, during the Pacific war.

In 1963, Pope John XXIII died.

Ten years ago: 130 persons, including a group of Atlanta, Ga., people on an art tour, were killed in an airliner crash near Orly Airport outside Paris.

Five years ago: 88 persons were killed when a chartered British airliner crashed in the French Pyrenees.

One year ago: James Hoffa announced from prison that he would not stand for re-election as president of the Teamsters Union.

Thought for today: A man who marries a beautiful woman marries torment—West African saying.

Jaycees First Prison Group Scout Sponsor

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Jeff Town Jaycees, made up of inmates at the Missouri State Prison here, have scored a first with the sponsorship of a Boy Scout troop.

The Boy Scout troop is believed to be the only troop sponsored by a prison organization.

About 10 to 12 underprivileged boys are members of Troop 73.

The charter of the new troop was presented Thursday at the first court of honor for the troop held in the prison gymnasium. The troop was founded at the prison last March under leadership of Scoutmaster erry Dempsey and Dr. Harold Waters, of Jefferson City.

Bill Tweedy, a scout executive of the Five Rivers District, said the troop carries on full scouting activities including regular meetings, hikes and overnight camping trips.

Dexter Man Arrested After Cars Collide

KENNETT — A 59-year-old Dexter man was arrested for careless and imprudent driving while drinking Thursday following a two-car crash on Independence Ave., police reported.

Investigation officers Lt. Jack Elliott and Patrolman Jack Davis reported Orval Samuel Keller was arrested after he pulled into the path of another car at 9:25 p.m.

The officers said Keller was driving a 1965 Buick south on Independence in the outside lane and attempted to make a left turn but pulled into the path of a 1970 Ford being driven by Gemberly A. Perkins, 25, Kennett, who was driving south in the inside lane. Perkins' car sustained damage to the right front and Keller's car was hit in the left side.

Children Learning To Swim

EAST PRAIRIE — The third week of the Kiwanis learn-to-swim program will begin Monday at the city pool.

One hundred children have received free American Red Cross lessons during the past two weeks and 60 are enrolled for the final week.

Junior and senior lifesaving classes also are given each day from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. These students then assist Michael Euer in instructing beginners from 11 a.m. to noon, Monday through Friday.

The swimming program, sponsored by the city and the Kiwanis Club, has been taught by Euer four years.

The pool, which opened to the public May 30, is managed by James Barnhill and Ed McWilliams. Mrs. Judy Wood is head lifeguard, assisted by Terry Siggers, Karla Wood and Gary Baker. Alternates are Andy Ambrose and Steve Husk.

Saving Of Swamp Up To Public

By JOHN L. BLUE
Missourian Managing Editor

CAPE GIRARDEAU — D-day has been set for the salvaging of a portion of the old Mingo Swamp in Stoddard County as a microcosm of southeast Missouri as it existed through the eons of time.

The Fish and Wildlife Service of the Department of Interior has set June 28 for a public hearing to determine public interest in preserving 1,700 acres of the 21,646-acre Mingo National Wildlife Refuge in the National Wilderness Preservation System.

Those close to the situation report that unless there is an outpouring of interest from organizations and individual citizens the chance of preserving the area under the wilderness system is slim.

The hearing will be held at 7:30 p.m. in Puxico High School. Written statements may be mailed either to the Regional Director, Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife Twin Cities, Minn., 55111, or handed to the hearing officer at the hearing. Oral statements will be heard, but officials seek submission in writing of important facts and arguments.

The swamp, taken over by the federal government as a national wildlife refuge in 1944, is the last of the aboriginal swamplands which once covered Southeast Missouri.

It is not virgin in nature, wildlife biologists point out, because it was cut over, drained and farmed in the earlier years of this century. Yet it persisted and since the government take-over has made a remarkable recovery until today it is approaching over thousands of acres, the state in which it existed over the centuries of time.

One biologist told The Missourian that it is the only remaining wilderness area left in the entire Midwest — Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Illinois and other central states of the Mississippi Valley.

"We need this wilderness area," he said, asking not to be quoted by name, "because there were millions of acres in Southeast Missouri and up and down the Mississippi River that once were pretty much like Mingo.

"This is the only tract in Missouri and the only one left in the Mississippi Valley that has any chance of being a wilderness area. I think it would be a shame were we to destroy what people could see as the way this country existed over the years."

If Mingo were included in the Wilderness Act of Sept. 3, 1964, it would not mean that there would be no public use. Hunting, fishing, canoeing and similar items, but no motoring, would be permitted. The area, however, would be preserved as it is and as growth continues to develop without any further inroads by civilization.

The swamp is tremendous in its diversity and is unlike any other in existence anywhere, authorities relate.

It is situated at the very base of the Ozark Plateau, is midway between the south and the north and has characteristics of each -- unlike any other area in the country. Its flora and fauna are unique, and its diversity is great, experts note.

Here grow huge cypress trees, the remainder of the once great stands througout southeast Missouri, tupelo gum, overcup oak, pin oak, willow oak, cherry-bark oak, hickory — the swamp trees and the upland trees growing on three levels. There are rare flowers, many now considered endangered as are various wildlife species.

Wildlife has made a tremendous comeback in the protected area of the swamp, even to the point where hunting is permitted for the gray and red squirrels and for deer in season. Turkeys now abound, as do swamp creatures, including poisonous snakes and many fishes and other waterlife.

County Clerk's Office Open On Saturday

BENTON — Scott County Clerk Bob Kielhofner has announced that his office in the courthouse will be open Saturday mornings beginning today, in order to give persons whose jobs will no not permit them to register to vote during the week to become eligible to vote Aug. 8 and Nov 7.

The county clerk said the office will be open from 8:30 a.m. to noon every Saturday from now through Aug. 5.

The deadline for registering for the Aug. 8 primary election is 28 days prior to that date, or July 10.

Beginning July 7 the office will have absentee ballots available for voting in the courthouse. The law provides that these absentee ballots be available to voters 30 days before the election.

Although voter registration must close on July 10, the office will be open on Saturdays for absentee voting on July 8, 15, 22, 29 and Aug. 5. Absentee ballots can also can be voted through the week during regular office hours from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., the clerk said.

The clerk announced that Cyril Glueck, of New Hamburg, and Betty McConnell, city clerk of Miner, have been appointed deputy voter registration officers for the convenience of voters in those areas.

All towns in the county have voter registration supplies and deputies are commissioned in the city halls, so that voters can register throughout the county during city hall office hours in the towns, the clerk said.

Absentee ballots are available through the mail by sending a request with the address to the county clerk's office.

Seven Treated

Seven were treated for injuries in the emergency room at Missouri Delta Community Hospital Friday.

Open Meeting Drive Endorsed By NDC Chief

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Rory Ellinger, state chairman of the New Democratic Coalition, has announced his full endorsement of the Citizens Lobby initiative petition drive which if ratified in November would virtually eliminate secrecy in government at state, county and local levels.

Ellinger, in a statement, urged all Missourians to support the petition drive which is headed by Carl Wilson, Kansas City, and Raymond Appleton, Columbia.

The Citizens Lobby needs to secure 92,000 signatures in Missouri's 10 congressional districts by the last part of June to place the petition on the ballot.

Ellinger said he was appalled at the recent refusal of members of the state legislature during their last session to take positive action on a bill which would have provided for open government.

Throughout the day, Humphrey told audiences he didn't believe the results of the Mervin Field organiztion poll published Friday, which showed McGovern holding a commanding 46-26 per cent lead among California Democrats.

McGovern privately discussed his "income supplement" welfare proposal with Mills, chairman of the powerful House Ways and Means Committee, and said he hoped the Arkansas Democrat would join him in a proposed campaign swing through the South later this month.

CBS NEWS SURVEY OF MICHIGAN VOTERS INDICATES GOVERNOR WALLACE WOULD HAVE WON MICHIGAN PRIMARY ON DEMOCRATIC VOTES ALONE

Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace would have won the Michigan Democratic primary (Tuesday, May 16) on the basis of the vote of Democrats alone, according to the results of a CBS News survey of 1,800 Michigan voters leaving their polling places.

Those people who said they considered themselves Democrats in the survey constituted only 60 percent of the voters, with the balance consisting of Republicans and independents. But the survey showed that Governor Wallace garnered 40 percent of the vote among those who considered themselves Democrats and that the "cross-over" voting was a factor in the size of his victory, but not in the victory itself.

As expected, this survey indicated that busing was the principal issue in the primary. Voters checked in the CBS News survey indicated that they would have voted in favor of a proposition that would prohibit busing by constitutional amendment by a 2-to-1 margin. Nearly 60 percent of the voters supporting the busing proposition cast their ballots for Governor Wallace, but it is intersting to note that 30 percent of the voters who opposed the amendment also voted for the Alabama Governor.

The CBS News survey also indicated the strength of Sen. George McGovern among young, first-time (18-24-year -old) Michigan voters, but at the same time confirmed the difference in outlook among young people. Students in the groups cast 60 percent of their votes for the Senator, with Governor Wallace running second with 20 percent. Among non-students, Governor Wallace gained 50 percent of the vote, with Senator McGovern trailing with 35 percent.

Among blacks, Sen. Hubert Humphrey was clearly the favorite with over 50 percent of the vote, with Rep. Shirley Chisholm and Senator McGovern dividing the remainder of the vote.

Governor Wallace also was the favorite among blue-collar workers, gaining 55 percent of the vote, with Senators McGovern and Humphrey collecting 20 percent of each. Among union members, Governor Wallace garnered 45 percent of the vote, with Senator McGovern running an unexpectedly strong second with 25 percent of the vote. Senator Humphrey had 20 percent.

George Fine Associates, a New York-based research company, conducted the survey in Michigan for the CBS News Election Unit, which is under the direction of Robert Chandler.

Here's Lucy...

LUCILLE BALL GETS ALL THE BREAKS

When one of the world's greatest comediennes happens to break a leg, she doesn't just sit back and figure that those are the breaks of show business -- she makes the weighty leg cast a show business prop.

Accordingly, Lucille Ball, star of "Here's Lucy," seen Mondays (8:00 - 8:30 PM,) on the CBS Television Network, turned the result of her recent accident into story ideas for next season.

Miss Ball broke her leg onwhat became a prolonged winter ski trip in Colorado. When filming began in March for next season's episodes, she turned her plaster cast into a series regular for a few weeks.

"Initially, of course, Mom was very upset about it," says Lucie Arnaz, the comedienne's daughter on the series and in real life. "Then, typically enough, she started to figure all the funny angles."

Miss Ball was a real celebrity in the hospital. "Every nurse's aide had to get a good look for herself," says Miss Arnaz.

Her door was opened a dozen times a night while people stared at the recumbent comedienne. And manipulating the clumsy limb was also a problem.

"Mom's first attempt to get herself up and in motion was like one of her comedy routines. On the way back into bed, she swung her leg so far over the mattress that it landed on the floor -- how that hurt. And then, there was the problem of fitting into tight spaces, making sudden moves and turning sharp corners."

Next season the added attraction to the Here's Lucy" cast will make its comic television debut, because according to Miss Arnaz, "Mom really broke her funny bone."

What You Want To Know?

Q. I have become a James Cagney fan since I've been watching some of his old movies on TV. Did he play George M. Cohan on the stage as well as in the movie "Yankee Doodle Dandy"? I have seen "Yankee Doodle Dandy" at least half a dozen times and I plan to see it every time I can when it plays on TV. M.C., Lehigh Valley, Pa.

A. James Cagney won an Oscar for his portrayal of George M. Cohan in "Yankee Doodle Dandy." However, he did not play the singer-dancer on the stage. Joel Grey played George M. Cohan in the Broadway musical, "George M., " and he repeated his characterization in a TV version of the music

Q. I understand that Candice Bergens has given up acting now and plans to go into politics. Is this a fact? Mrs. T.M., Bangor, Maine

A. Miss Bergen is not trading her acting career for one in politics. She is very busy these days going from one film to another.

Q. Who played the two leads in the movie "Fraulein" which I saw on TV? I thought the film was pretty good but I didn't recognize the guy and the beautiful girl. T.B., Tampa, Fla.

A. Dana Wynter and Mel Ferrer starred in the 1968 film about a German girl's hard times at the end of World War II.

Q. I am very interested in an actress named Suzanne Pleshett, who appears in many made-for -TV films and other shows. Where does she come from? That is, films or the stage? I have a friend who is a theater nut and she said that Suzanne was a Broadway actress. What plays did she appear in? — L.P., Hickory, N.C.

A. Suzanne Pleshette began her acting career on Broadway. She had a small part in "Compulsion" and had a good featured role in "The Cold Wind and the Warm" with Eli Wallach and Maureen Stapleton. She took over for Anne Bancroft in "The Miracle Worker." Then the movies and TV claimed her services.

The Melba Moore-Clifton Davis Show

5 weeks starting Wednesday,
June 7, 7:00 - 8:00 PM

THE MELBA MOORE–CLIFTON DAVIS SHOW"' a musical-comedy series, will premiere on the CBS Television Network June 7, 1972, and run for five consecutive weeks. Melba Moore is the actress-singer who won a Tony award for her role in "Purlie" on Broadway, and Clifton Davis is an actor-songwriter currently playing the role of Valentive in the Tony-winning Broadway rock musical version of "Two Gentlemen of Verona." Two-time Emmy winner Jean Stapleton is the special guest star on the opening show of the summer series which replaces "The Carol Burnett Show."

In addition to the principals, Miss Moore and Mr. Davis, regulars on the series include comedian Timmy Rogers, comic-impressionists Ron Carey and Dick Libertini, and singer-comedienne Liz Torres. Moms Mabley is also a guest on the opener.

The setting for the show will be the framework of an apartment building; an entrance hall, a rooftop against the skyline of New York, a front stoop and Miss Moore's living quarters. The music and skits spring from the relationships among the various residents of the building. Rogers portrays the apartment superintendent, and Carey, Libertini, Torres as well as Moore and Davis play the different lease-holders.

THE MELBA MOORE–CLIFTON DAVIS SHOW originates in New York and is produced and directed by Stan Harris.

Big Four Activate Berlin Pact

BERLIN (AP) – The Big Four foreign ministers signed documents today activating the 1971 Berlin accord easing travel to and from isolated West Berlin. The agreement, a milestone in East-West relations, goes into effect at midnight.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers, Foreign Secretary Alex Douglas-Home of Britain and Foreign Ministers Andrei Gromyko of the Soviet Union and Maurice Schumann of France signed the final protocol in West Berlin's Allied Control Council Building. This is the same Prussian palace where the agreement was initialed Sept. 3, 1971, following 18 months of negotiations.

The three Western foreign ministers conferred in Bonn with West German Chancellor Willy Brandt before flying separately to isolated West Berlin, 110 miles inside East Germany.

Chancellor Willy Brandt's government had demanded the Berlin accord as the price for the treaty and Moscow had insisted that West Germany ratify the pact before the Berlin accord went into effect.

Last minute German-Russian wrangling over the treaty ratification had threatened to upset the timetable. Bonn wanted to include in the ratification document mention of its desire for eventual reunification of West and East Germany.

The Soviets balked but a compromise formula, undisclosed, was worked out at the last minute.

The Four Power agreement gives West Berliners 30 visiting days a year to East Berlin and East Germany and provides for eased Communist controls of vital overland access ways to West Berlin.

Two Arrests In Home Theft

CHARLESTON — Stanley Lee Davidson, 30, East Prairie, and Jimmy Wilson, 19, of Anniston, are being held in Mississippi county jail for investigation of stealing, according to Deputy Sheriff Everett Holley.

At 2 a.m. today Mrs. Ollie Jackson, 204 W. Pine Street., East Prairie, reported a television set and hairdrier had been stolen from her home.

The men were arrested at 5:30 a.m. today by Deputy Sheriff Jack Ivie, who said the stolen articles were in their possession.

Fake Bills Being Passed

A lazy counterfeiter has moved into the Caruthersville area and is passing bogus $10 bills of poor quality.

The counterfeit money is $1 bills converted to look like $10 bills. The picture of George Washington is still on the money.

The Chamber of Commerce was notified of the bogus money through the Red Alert system.. In the system the Chamber of Commerce in an area where a counterfeiter or bogus check passer is working, notifies other Chambers in the area, which in turn notify otherChambers.

The purpose is to keep bad money passers from moving from town to town.

Man Fined On Driving Charge

CHARLESTON — One arrest was reported by the police department. Larry Gene Poley, 30, route one, was arrested at 3:42 a.m. today on a charge of careless and reckless driving and fined $15 by City Judge Frank Gillispie.

Two Skyjackers Take $700,000 In Ransom

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

One plane hijacker bailed out shortly after take off from Reno, Nev., early today while a second forced a plane to take him toward Algiers after a transcontinental flight from San Francisco with a stop in New York City for refueling.

The Western Airlines jet was ordered to Algiers after the hijacker, who claimed at first to have a bomb and three accomplices, released all 41 passengers forced to fly with him from San Francisco, police said. The FBI said five crewmen were on board for the transatlantic flight.

The air pirate, a young black man dressed in a military uniform, had seized a smaller plane after take off from Seattle and ordered it to land in San Francisco, where he demanded and received $500,000 ransom and a larger plane.

The man released about 50 passengers in San Francisco and forced the others to board the larger plane.

Passengers released in San Francisco said the hijacker implied that he and his alleged comrades were members of the leftist Students for a Democratic Society. Airline officials in Seattle had said that the hijacker originally demanded freedom for black activist Angela Davis, but the report was later discounted.

In Washington, the FBI announced that American authorities in Honduras had in custody a man accused of hijacking a jet in Pennsylvania last month, collecting $303,000 in ransom and then forcing the plane to Central America where he bailed out.

An FBI spokesman said Frederick W. Hahneman, 49, turned himself in early today to authorities at the U.S. Embassy in Tegucigalpa.

Hahneman was charged in a federal warrant Thursday with hijacking an Eastern Air Lines jet shortly after it left the Allentown, Pa., airport May 5.

In Reno, a massive search was on for an armed man who jumped from a United Air Lines 727 jetliner just after taking off with $200,000 in ransom and some parachutes.

The man, his face concealed by a pillow slip with eye slits, charged aboard a flight that had just arrived at Reno International Airport from New York City. He was forced to transfer to another 727 after being told the plane he was in was low on fuel and had an engine out.

During the negotiations for the ransom in $100 bills, the man held a .357-magnum pistol over three stewardesses, the pilot and copilot.

The plane transfer was accomplished with the hijacker shielding himself with hostages as he moved from one to the other.

The hunt was launched immediately in a remote area between Reno and Ashoe Lake, 25 miles away, sheriff's deputies said. The plane returned to the airport 30 minutes after take off.

Humphrey Tries To Dispel Loser Image

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Three days before Tuesday's crucial California presidential primary, Sen. George McGovern has begun courting party regulars in anticipation of victory. And Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey is trying to dispel the loser's image left by a poll showing him far behind.

McGovern received two key endorsements Friday from powerful New York City Democrats, Meade Esposito of Brooklyn and Patrick Cunningham of the Bronx, and he met privately with Rep. Wilbur Mills of Arkansas.

Humphrey struggled through a long, tough campaign day, during which he said he would not withdraw from the Democratic race for the White House even if he is defeated in the winner -take-all contest for California's 271 votes at the nominating convention.

Meanwhile, Rep. Shirley Chisholm won a court order Friday telling the Federal Communications Commission to direct CBS and ABC television networks to give her prime time matching joint appearances of McGovern and Humphrey.

Mrs. Chisholm of New York and Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty, both Democratic presidential aspirants also campaigning in California, had demanded equal time to counter joint interviews of Humphrey and McGovern. But Yorty's request for equal television time was turned down by the 9th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco Friday, and he demanded that he be included in the order issued in favor of Mrs. Chisholm by a federal appeals court in Washington.

Other Bootheel cities and their grants include:

Charleston, $50,815.
Dexter, $71,166.
New Madrid, $12,425.

Two Arrests In House Theft

Police are holding two juveniles today for Thursday night's robbery of the C. D. Russell home at 829 Ruth St.

One of the youths had $40 in his pocket when he was arrested and the other had blank checks and a stamp pad with Russell's name on them.

About $75 in silver dollars were taken from the home during the robbery. The youths were picked up after they tried to pass silver dollars at a grocery store on Gladys Street. The owner became suspicious and called police.

Five Sought In Gun Attack

PEERLESS PARK, Mo. (AP) — Police were searching for four men and a woman in this St. Louis suburb today following the wounding of an off-duty Missouri highway patrolman Friday night.

Trooper Louis G. Garris was shot in the leg and back with a shotgun and was listed in good condition at a St. Louis County hospital, police said.

Garris was taking a friend home when the pair was invited into a clubhouse on the Meramec River. Police said Garris was shot after the four men and one woman inside the clubhouse learned he was a police officer, police said.

Garris' friend was not hurt, police said.

Portageville Man Injured

HAYTI — John Delisle, 22, of Portageville, was injured in a one-car accident at 4:50 a.m. today near Hayti on highway 84 at the I-55 overpass.

He was taken to Pemiscot County Hospital in Hayti with cuts and bruises on the face and possible chest injuries.

According to the highway patrol Delisle's car ran off the right side of the road, struck a guard rail, crossed back over the road and hit the other guard rail.

Three Fined

EAST PRAIRIE — Richard Wilson, Roger Scott, and Dale Crump, all of East Prairie, were fined $25 each by Police Judge J. Marvin Bryan on charges of drinking in public.

Other charges and fines levied in police court include James L. Blue, public intoxication, $20; Patricia Ann Johnson, careless and reckless driving, $25; Eual Russom, public intoxication, $20; Cathy Johnson, assaulting a police officer, $20, and illegal parking, $10.

Edward Bonta pleaded innocent to careless and imprudent driving, failure to stop for a police car red light and speeding.

American Planes Knock Out North Viet Supply Systems

SAIGON, (AP) — Scores of American fighter-bombers ranged from Hanoi southward to the big coastal city of Vinh Friday, smashing at North Vietnam's supply and transportation system and shooting down the 35th MIG interceptor this year, the U.S. Command announced today.

The Command said Air Force, Navy and Marine attack planes flew more than 250 strikes across North Vietnam, destroying or damaging nine bridges, 41 trucks, 36 surface craft, 43 supply buildings and 21 storage areas.

A flight of four Air Force F4 Phantoms escorting the bombers on raids intercepted two MIG19s about 40 miles northeast of Hanoi and 50 miles south of the Chinese border, the Command said. It said one of the MIGs was downed.

The Command reported no American air losses in Friday's raids, but North Vietnam claimed three U.S. planes were shot down.

Overcast skies and thundershowers continued today to cut into the number of air strikes flown by U.S. fighter-bombers over South Vietnam, and marginal weather also was reported over the North.

In South Vietnam, the Saigon command claimed 450 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops were killed by government ground forces and air and artillery strikes in fighting along the northern, central and southern fronts as the enemy's offensive went into its 66th day.

The Navy said strike planes from the 7th Fleet carriers Coral Sea, Saratoga and Kitty Hawk attacked dozens of targets ranging from the Hanoi area 160 miles southward to Vinh.

Navy pilots reported knocking out at least eight bridges in a continuing campaign to strangle North Vietnam's transportation network and cut the flow of war materials into South Vietnam.

On the ground, North Vietnamese troops continued to maintain heavy pressure on Phu My district town in central coastal Binh Dinh province, where three northern districts fell to the enemy earlier in the offensive.

Phu My was reported encircled by enemy forces.

At Kontum, in the central highlands to the west, 137 North Vietnamese troops were killed while government losses were 12 dead and 55 wounded, the Saigon command said.

On the far northern front, 25 miles above Hue, two task forces of South Vietnamese paratroopers trying to

Blanton Named To College Office

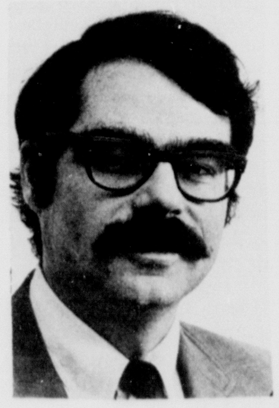
ST. LOUIS — Harry A. Blanton, administrative assistant to the president of St. Louis University, lawyer and former teacher and assistant academic dean at Loyola University in Chicago, has been appointed vice president for academic affairs of the College of St. Francis in Joliet, Illinois.

He is the son of Harry C. Blanton of Sikeston.

In announcing that Blanton will succeed the Rev. David M. Clarke, recently named 17th president of Regis College in Denver, CSF President Francis J. Kerins noted that the new academic vice president has been a civic leader in each of the communities in which he has lived since graduating from law school in 1961.

The 36-year-old Blanton took a bachelor's degree in English at the University of Notre Dame in 1958 and doctor of jurisprudence at the University of Missouri law school in Columbia three years later. He practiced law in Sikeston, with the firm of Blanton, Blanton & Rice four years, then went to Loyola as an English teacher in the University College evening school and assistant academic dean of the college of arts and sciences. He took a master's degree in English at Loyola in 1968.

Blanton became administrative assistant at St. Louis University in July of 1969.



Harry A. Blanton

He has been St. Louis U. liaison representative to the Independent Colleges and Universities of Missouri and, while completing a doctorate dissertation in higher education, has been graduate student representative to the education faculty of the university.

At Loyola, his duties included academic counseling, director of the honors convocation for superior students, prelegal adviser and member of the under-graduate committee on admissions. He also is active in Scouting.

Blanton and his wife, the former Carol Page, are the parents of six children.

Call Warsaw Pact Summit In Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — A Warsaw Pact summit has been called in Moscow for next week to discuss the outcome of President Nixon's visit, East European sources said today.

The informants said they expected the summit to be attended by leaders of both government and Communist party organizations from all alliance members.

The sources said they did not know the exact date set for the summit but understood it was to be "early next week."

It was probable the Soviets convened the summit to obtain a public stamp of approval from their Warsaw Pact partners for the results of the Nixon trip.

Also forecast was some discussion about where the pact is to go now on questions of Europe, including a mutual military disengagement in central Europe.

Plea For Changes In Government

With the belief that state government structural charges will "set the stage for more well-considered legislation" Jack Schramm of University City says he is basing a drive for the office of lieutenant governor on governmental reorganization.

Schramm, now completing his eighth year in the Missouri House of Representatives, spoke to a Standard reporter Friday about his campaign for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor.

"If we make state government more visible where we can see and be seen, and get where we can hear and be heard, the government will become more responsive to what people want," he said.

"This could solve the problem of people wanting to bypass the legislature and open the way for other governmental reforms," Schramm explained.

To get the more general social legislation passed such as tax relief for the elderly and mental health reforms, this opening up of the legislative processes must come first, he observed.

"My priority is on the more specific estrangement between government and people" he said. "Too long the people have felt government is run behind closed doors with shady deals. There is a definite problem of trust in government. We must reduce the distance between the people and the decision making process."

If elected, Schramm said he would use the office of lieutenant governor as a forum for the development of innovative changes.

"Too often the legislature has been run like a fire department, going from crisis to crisis with a Band-Aid approach to serious problems."

Speaking of the property tax, the representative said he supports a reduced emphasis in support for education.

If the federal government fails to step in and support education, then the money should come from a combination of income and sales tax. But, Schramm added, this tax cannot be sold to the people unless it's basically the same as before restructuring.

"The income tax is a better source of revenue because it's a 'growth' tax–it increases with the economy," he explained.

A sponsor of legislation to provide tax relief for the Missouri senior citizens, Schramm backed the "circuit breaker" bill, which was designed to rebate taxes to both home owners and renters, tied to each person's income.

Schramm has also sponsored reform legislation. This includes education, environment, administration of justice, housing and health care.

Schramm has said he tries to "avoid coming off like a knight on a white charger."

But the central problem he sees in government was summed up by a bumper sticker the young legislator observed earlier..." "The majority isn't silent, the government is deaf."

Job Bank Opens Operations In Area

JEFFERSON CITY — Two new job banks, Southeast Missouri and Capital Area, went into operation Thursday completing a state-wide system. The new banks involve 12 cities and 43 counties.

Herman Julien, director of the Missouri Division of Employment Security, announced the additions.

Southeast Missouri Job Bank comprises division offices in Cape Girardeau, Caruthersville, Kennett, Sikeston, Poplar Bluff, and the counties served by the offices.

Capital Area Job Bank includes the office areas of Jefferson City, Columbia, Hannibal, Kirksville, Marshall, Moberly, and Mexico.

Central control for both banks is Jefferson City.

"The Missouri Division is sixth among all state Employment Security agencies to establish job bank statewide," Julien said. "The function of the Division's Employment Service is the filling of employers' job orders and the suitable placement of job-seekers in the state, those entering the labor force and returning service-men as well as those unemployed workers hit by economic change. Job Bank makes it possible to refer workers in areas where there are no job openings to an employer in another cummunity where workers may be needed."

A job bank is a listing of job orders updated daily by computer and distributed by mail on microfiche to the Division's 40 local offices daily. The Missouri Job Bank System uses microfiche for listing job orders and displaying these job orders in the offices. Microfiche may display up to 1,248 different job orders. Missouri is one of a few states that produce their own microfiche. The local offices call in their job orders to Jefferson City each night.

Five banks cooperate in the system. Missouri established its first job bank in St. Louis in June of 1969. It was the second job bank in the nation. In February of 1970, Kansas City Job Bank became operational. St. Louis and Kansas City Job Banks are bi-state banks. Four Kansas offices are in Kansas City Bank, and five Illinois offices have joined with St. Louis Bank.

In 1971, Southwest Missouri Job Bank began. The two additions complete the network of operations in Missouri, and any bank may make referrals from job listings received from other areas.

Julien said the contribution of job bank to placement services has been twofold: "We have available an up-to-date register of all job orders, and control over the number of applicants referred."

SOLDIER IN FOCUS

A Congressional Medal of Honor winner has helped put the role of a soldier in focus for us. He is Captain Paul Bucha, who teaches at West Point. Speaking at the Governor's Prayer Breakfast in New Haven, Conn., last week, Captain Bucha called for "peace at home and within ourselves" and said it was "absurd to think professional soldiers are pro-war."

The military man serves, he said, "because he believes that what he as an individual can do, may help speed the day when swords will be beaten into plowshares."

Captain Bucha, who was named one of the top 10 young men of 1971 by the Jaycees, said in his address that "the great tragedy of our age" is that some of its best minds "are devoted to killing people to prevent unrestrained spoils-taking by a victor."

"No man lives by the sword," he pointed out. "All live in the hope of peace. The career military man lives in the hope that his presence in uniform will make it possible to keep the sword sheathed." It is the military man, he said, "who has most to lose by war."

The many millions of ex-G.I.'s scattered throughout the country can bear him out. Particularly in a nation that has had a draft for the last 30 years and more, it is absurd to look on soldiers as different than ordinary men.

COMING ALIVE WITH JUNE

Across the flat country of East Arkansas, to the White River and beyond, and down the sweep of the Mississippi Delta, the earth is coming to life. Tractors buzz up and down the fields, almost with the fervor of drag racers. Green rice shoots spread from highway to horizon in Arkansas. There is a bursting of plant life in the rich soil of the Delta. Crop dusters swoop down and out of sight behind rows of foilage. Cattle fatten themselves in West Tennessee.

In the city, the trees have reached their full glory and each leaf becomes a miniature kite in the breezes from the south. The parks are jammed with game players and picnickers, and some who simply loll in the shade or watch the passing parade.

On the highway, there is a catalog of license plates from throughout the nation. New York whips by in a sport car. Pennsylvania, Indiana, Michigan, Oregon, Texas, California — on and on goes the march of states. People moving to new locations in station wagons packed floor to roof and pulling trailers. Campers with boats attached. Tourists with luggage stacked atop the roof. Families seeing America, and American looking back at what the auto, the interstate highways, and affluence have produced in a form of mobility.

The sky over the Mid-South is a huge cup of blue. Then flecked with fluffy white. Then gray, with gusts of wind and distant thunder.

All about is the spirit of change. And why? It's June, with its rare days, its sense of the poetry of life, its perennial beauty. For this is the time when people as well as the rooted plants come alive.

D-DAY, BEFORE AND AFTER

They came out of the morning mist from the west, swarmed onto the beaches, and as they died others came to take their places, to crawl through the hedgerows and swamps and ultimately to crush the monstrous military machine of Hitler. That was D-Day, 28 years ago.

Others came from other morning mists.

A squadron of gunboats rounded Hopefield Bend at daylight and attacked a force of Confederate craft. Before dark, the city was occupied by Union troops. That was the Battle of Memphis, June 6, 1862.

Another time it was late afternoon when the Marines went over the top. Artillery shells and machinegun fire cut them down in the high grass and corporals commanded companies because officers and sergeants were dead. But they accomplished their mission. That was the Battle of Belleau Wood, June 6, 1918.

United Nations troops slogged through the mud above the 38th Parallel, moving back after Red Chinese and North Koreans had forced them to retreat. In sight was a high ridge. That was the Battle of Heartbreak Hill, June 6, 1951.

Israeli tanks raced across the desert, clouds of sand and death following in their wake. Before them swept panic as Egyptians fled barefooted back to the Suez. That was the start of the Six-Day War between Arab and Jew, June 6, 1967.

Airborne infantrymen stalked warily through jungles near the border of Laos, South Vietnamese beside them, in a sweep of the A Shau Valley. That is Operation Apache Snow, June 6, 1969.

Memorable dates are these, all a part of history tinged with glory. From D-Day, the largest operation, to the Battle of Memphis, the smallest, they signify sacrifice with honor, and Americans hold their heads high at the memory.

And then, may our heads be bowed with a prayer to God that another June 6 will dawn with the morning mists of common dignityand peace.

EUROPE'S TRAINS

Americans have long envied Europeans for the luxury and comfort of their railroad accommodations. Today, European railroads link cities all over the continent, and travelers can sup on three-course meals and sip vintage wines. The International Union of Railways, which helps facilitate European rail travel, celebrates its 50th anniversary on Thursday, June 8, with an exhibition at Montparnasse Station in Paris. The IUR standardizes customs procedures, timetables and equipment from country to country.

Rail travel in Europe is continually improving, Computers at travel centers can handle sleeper-reservations for 1,600 trains at any one time. England in particular has enjoyed a boom in railroading in the past 10 years, primarily on routes connecting such large cities as Birmingham and Manchester with London. The distances involved -- about 200-300 miles -- are too short for flying and too long for comfortable driving on a day's business. After electrification of the lines in 1966, passenger use jumped by 20 per cent in one year and has now surpassed air traffic on the same routes. Forecasts envision a 155-mile- an-hour train which will cut the London-Glasgow trip to about four hours. It now takes six.

Railways in Europe have always had something of the romantic attached to them. But about all that's left of the old romanticism are such names as Flying Scotsman, Rheingold, Mayflower and the now-defunct Brighton Belle. However, those not looking for speed can sample the revival of steam propulsion on a seven-mile railway system in Wales. Buffs on the Talyllyn Railway are asked to get out and chase sheep off the track, or sand slippery rails from a watering can. For luxury, the rail traveler's best bet is the Paris-Nice Mistral Express, which features its own cinema, hairdresser and bookshop.

PSST — WANNA KNOW A SECRET?

There's an unwritten rule about government information and it appears to be, "When in doubt, classify it." A retired security officer, William G. Florence, confirmed this suspicion when he testified last year before the House Subcommittee on Foreign Operations and Government Information. Florence said a memo once circulated in the Pentagon suggesting that the use of "Top Secret" be reduced. "Believe it or not," Florence said, "that note itself was marked Top Secret." He estimated that only one-half of one per cent of all classified Defense Department material contained genuine secrets.

President Nixon's executive order limiting government secrecy became effective on Thursday, June 1. He signed it last March to end the classified memo kind of thing and to placate Congress, which had been calling for more freedom of government information since the brouhaha over the Pentagon Papers. The order reduces the number of bureaucrats who can stamp anything Top Secret, Secret or Confidential. The number of officials with access to the Top Secret stamp, for instance, will be reduced from 5,100 to 1,860.

Theoretically, all 10-year-old Top Secrets, eight-year- old Secret papers and six -year- old Confidential files will become available to the public on June 1. But don't expect to find out all about the Korean War, the landing of U. S. troops in Lebanon in 1958, the Bay of Pigs invasion in 1961 and the Cuban missile crisis of 1962 on that date. If anyone wants to know a secret he must first of all know which one he wants. Then he must direct a request to the department involved and wait for the individual who classified the information to decide whether to release it. If the official says "no," the seeker can appeal to a departmental committee, then to the newly created Inter-agency Classification Review Committee. And finally, if he's still interested and has the time and money, he can appeal to the federal courts.

The archives are clogged with secrets. There are an estimated 160 million pages of them on World War II alone. President Nixon asked Congress in August 1971 for $636,000 to begin a five-year program of clearing this material for release. But for all its interest in government secrets, Congress has yet to appropriate the money.

ZEN BUDDHISM BEATS ALL

Japanese businessmen are reportedly stunned by President Nixon's new economic policy. But they can always turn to Zen Buddhism to cushion the impact.

Many leaders in Japanese industry favor Zen training to infuse the virtues of enthusiasm, discipline and loyalty in the new breed of "economic samurai," says the National Geographic Society.

Large firms such as Matsushita Electric Co. offer to send their employes to temples for long weekends of training. The volunteers receive instruction, clean the temple grounds and purge their minds by sitting in meditation.

There are two main schools. The larger, Soto, holds that the enlightenment of inner understanding can be attained, gradually. The Rinzai sect believes that it comes in a flash of insight after grueling hours of meditation — frequently accompanied by physical blows and shouts.

"A strange experience but good," said a participant at a weekend Rinzai session for businessmen. "You reach your limit, yet can't make a sound. You yearn for the beating which pulls you up straight again."

Judging by that, President Nixon sounds like a Rinzai practitioner from way back.

ENFORCING THE BILLBOARD BAN

The idea of enacting a Tennessee law prohibiting billboards closer than 660 feet to an interstate or primary highway in non-industrial or non-urban areas was to stop the despoiling of the landscape — and to avoid a cut in federal highway funds.

We are disturbed to hear that some 400 illegal signs have been erected in Tennessee since the law took effect April 4. The right-of way engineer for the state Highway Department says all the reports from his scouts are not yet in, but it is "accurate to say" that some ssgn companies are violating the new regulation.

Enforcement could not get off the ground the minute the legislature decided to go along with federal requirements, to avoid a 10 per cent loss of road funds. But the sign builders have known all along what was coming and what the law said as of April 4. It is lamentable to think that some would try to sneak in under the wire through illegal tactics.

We are glad to see the Highway Department is doing all within its power to halt the erection of new signs in illegal areas, and to obtain the means to force those companies which have violated the new law to remove, at their own expense, the billboards, which have gone up in the past two weeks.

Tennessee has some 7,000 miles of Interstate Highway system and primary federal roadway to be concerned about. Much of that goes through areas zoned to permit signs near the highway. A lot of research will be needed to ascertain what is legal or illegal. Then there are about 32,000 signboards to be checked out. All of that is understood.

However, we would hope that the billboard companies, having lost to the legislature, would not now try to circumvent it by plying their trade as if such a law had not been passed. — Commercial Appeal.

IF AUTO TAX GOES, CAN PHONE TAX END?

With passage of legislation repealing one ancient Federal excise tax (the 7-per cent manufacturers' tax on autos) now under consideration, Congressional attention has turned to another "oldie", notes Tax Foundation, Inc.

A bill has been introduced to repeal the 10-per cent Federal excise tax on phone calls (a measure set up as "temporary" 30 years ago). Originally begun as a wartime measure, the levy was supposed to lapse six months after the end of WW II. The currently schedule phase-out date for the tax is 1982. It now brings in $1.6 billion annually.

HOW COMMUNISM SPREADS

In 1903, Lenin commanded a following of 16 in London. By November 7, 1917, Lenin's followers had increased and though there were only 40,000 of these Bolsheviks in Russia, they overthrew the Kerensky government which had deposed the Czarist regime the previous May 12th. These 40,000 communists took over 150 million backward peoples, including Russians and dozens of other ethnic groups formerly ruled by the Czars. In the 55 years since then, communism has taken over a billion persons, or a third of the world's population, and Marxist Socialism has spread beyond the wholly communist countries to dominate many other governments and exert heavy influence in virtually all the nations of the world.

In 1933, in the United States, the Fabian Socialists began to extoll the virtues of Socialism so that they might take credit for social reform. They used subtle and insidious pressures to undermine and prevent opposition to their schemes. Another tool of the leftists was propaganda, at which they are history's greatest masters.

The propaganda line used to head off anti-communist efforts by American businessmen was: "You must not show much love of country; if you do, it will disturb stockholders, alienate labor and lose customers." A large segment of business management is sold on this false line of the enemy, regardless of what owners or stockholders may believe.

Defense of our free-market, profit-motive, personal-enterprise economic system is nothing short of self-preservation for the nation's businessmen. Those who fail to do their duty in his respect may be guilty only of apathy, but if they expect someone else to fill the gap, they are leaving their survival in the hands of others.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Thirty years ago, Chet Holifield came to Congress out of a men's apparel shop with visions of public service in his head. He took his place with the young Turks, standing up for reform, battling the special interests, putting his conscience ahead of his bank balance.

Today, the California Democrat still has the tweedy look of a haberdasher. But he has lost the light in his eyes. He has become a power in the House, a party to backroom deals. The special interests he once fought are now his friends, and his office has become a watering hole for their lobbyists.

When he wanted to relax on his way to a Geneva atomic convention last summer, for example, Holifield was offered the use of a Spanish villa belonging to industrialist Perkins McGuire. As House Government Operations chairman, he has general jurisdiction over government contracts involving McGuire's wide corporate interests.

Holifield was accompanied during his five-day stay, incidentally, by Rep. Craig Homer, a stuffy California conservative, devoted to the big money interests. There was a time when Holifield would have fought Hosmer, not fraternized with him.

At home, Holifield has been slugging it out with Ralph Nader over the consumer protection bill and, for his heroics, has been accepting the backpats of the special pleaders.

One of Washington's most effective lawyer-lobbyists, Neil Naiden, has organized $100-a -plate suppers to raise money for Holifield and invited a host of lobbyists to pony up.

PATRONAGE FOR LOBBYIST

When Naiden's son, Fred, wanted a summer job, Holifield put the boy on the public payroll as a Capitol page. The lobbyists' son earned $1,200 during two summers under Holifield's wing.

Naiden also made the arrangements and wrote the testimony for a pitch before Holifield's committee by the Western Electronic Manufacturers Association.

Another Naiden client, Babcock and Wilcox, was distressed over the Atomic Energy Commission's regulatory proceedings. Naiden complained to Holifield, who has considerable clout at the AEC.

In an earlier column, we reported that ITT's Robert Schmidt delivered $500 in crisp hundred dollar bills to Holifield office. About the same time, Schmidt drafted a letter which Holifield sent to the Defense Department on behalf of a multi-million -dollar ITT contract proposal.

Holifield admitted in a House statement that he had signed the incriminating letter to the Pentagon, but both he and Schmidt denied any $500 payoff. However, we have evidence the money was left with a Holifield aide, who routinely accepted it for the congressman.

A steady stream of lobbyists, meanwhile, have worn a path on Holifield's carpet. They include Walter Phair, Kaiser Industries; Frank Rogers, Western Oil and Gas; Alan Nedry, Southern California Edison; Harry LeVine, General Electric; Albert Woodward, Flying Tiger Airline; Tom Bendorf, a former Lockheed lobbyist who later lobbied against no-fault insurance for the American Trial Lawyers; Howard Conner and John Vance, Pacific Gas and Electric.

My associate, Les Whitten called the congressman in Pico-Rivera, Calif., for his comments. "I have no remarks to make to you or anyone in your organization," snapped Holifield. "You can cease calling me." He then hung up the telephone.

Christmas Story -- Last Christmans, the American Mining Congress delivered four Christmas trees as gifts to the top Interior Department brass as evidence that trees grow on strip-mined land. Ralph Nader protested to the Civil Service Commission, which has finally finished its investigation. The commission found that Secretary Rogers Morton never got his Christmas tree. Undersecretary William Pecora received his tree but never used it. Assistant Secretary Hollis Dole put is up at home, and Mines Director Elburt Osborn mounted his at the office. In belittling the gifts, Interior reported that the trees, intended to show what bountiful growth is possible on strip-mined lands, were "extremely thin" and of "nominal value."

Our Error – In a recent column, we reported that the Pentagon motor pool's use of premium instead of regular gas was costing the taxpayers about $2 million a year. We have now determined this figure was grossly inflated. The actual amount wasted by the use of premium gasoline amounted to no more than about $5,000. We apologize for the miscalculation.

Mollenhoff's Back -- One of Washington's finest investigative reporters, Clark Mollenhoff, is back muckraking again after a benign tumor was removed from his brain. His latest book, "Strike Force," is hot off the press. It tells how the Justice Department has used 18 special strike forces to combat the godfather influence on the American political system. Mollenhoff claims the Justice Department has gotten off to a "commendable start" in the fight against organized crime.

Corset-brassiere harbingers: Gov't muscles up for far wider wage-price decontrols

WASHINGTON — Despite women's lib, the very proper Pay Board has a landmark case on its hands -- what to do with a petition for wage increases from an embattled coalition of corset and brassiere workers locals of the prestigious International Ladies Garment Workers Union (ILGWU). This is no snickering matter. To harassed Pay Board members the corset and brassiere crisis looms larger than Teddy Gleason's Longshoremen.

The mainstay of this corset case is the union's memorandum to the board stating that the ILGWU and the Associated Corset and Brassiere Manufacturers, Inc., would put their new wage contract into effect 75 days after filing for a 9.3 per cent first year increase for 3,200 sewing machine operators -- mostly black and Puerto Rican women.

The international union, one of the world's most influential, led by Lou Stulberg, filed on Feb. 16. It was all very formal. There was no doubt that the cost of living provisions made the 9.3 per cent hike acceptable to all. But the Pay Board bridled at being told by the New York corset and brassiere workers that it would have to approve the compact in 75 days.

This put a new face on Phase Two. The board interpreted the petition as a needle from the garment workers, one of whose leaders said, "We really can't sit on needles for months."

The union's move was neither defiance nor challenge. It said, in effect, it seems to me, that the women workers wanted their pay and might not be able to be held in line after 75 days. So early in April the employers' association, not having heard from the Pay Board and having already increased salaries by the permissible 5.5 per cent, added the additional wages to the women's pay envelopes.

This irked the board. It had, through the Cost of Living council and the Justice Dept., already taken two landmark actions.

In mid-April the A & P chain food stores and Baltimore Local 117 of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters had been ordered to roll back contracted wage increases ranging from some 15 and 22 per cent down to 7 per cent the first year. The union was ordered not to strike nor take any action to force the grocery chain to pay the higher wages.

Thus the Pay Board won a victory far more significant than its actions in the mines, on the rails or waterfronts. The board now has the power to order wages rolled back.

Then a few days ago in court the Pay Board sought the right to force union members to repay their employers for wages paid in excess of the 5.5 guideline or other approved wage hikes. This was in the case of 39 members of "Typo" Local 47 in Connecticut (International Typographical Union). Having won rollback rights the Pay Board now wants pay back power.

Now the Pay Board is pondering action to empower it to time its own decisions. It considers the corset and brassiere petition a "time limit" case. There is little dispute over the justification for the wage increase but some board members believe they can't permit a union or a company to give them a deadline for decision.

The principle is the whole thing -- not the nature of the product or the size of the firm or the union locals. Note there are only 77 meat workers, 39 "typos" and 3,200 women, spread across many ladies' undergarment shops, involved in these three cases. But the principles set are enormous.

What if firms with thousands of workers were found in similar violation? What if a union struck in defiance of the Pay Board? What if the workers refused to repay the employers? What if firms simply notified the Pay Board that they'd move unless they heard from it?

On the other hand the Pay Board would have enourmous power if it let itself get backlogged and so could veto collective bargaining agreements -- or delay their implementation for a year.

The Pay Board's desire for controls power is not whimsy. Behind the scenes of the board and its parent Cost of Living Council, in the high echelons of its executive director Don Rumsfeld and its new chairman, the easy-does-it free marketeer George Shultz, there is much planning for sweeping decontrols.

At this moment the plans are to decontrol, soon, scores of thousands of additional firms and millions of workers by lifting wage and price restrictions on firms with 1,000 or fewer workers. This would wipe out "Tier Three." By shedding a tier Rumsfeld and Shultz would have only corporations which the big industries under controls.

Thus the Pay Board and the entire stabilization system will have monitored the last of the small firms and will be set to handle the first of the new big ones coming up in 1973 -- General Electric, for example, which will set the pace for the entire electrical industry. And "auto" at that year's end which ill set the scales for heavy industry negotiations throughout 1974. The Pay Board's belief is that it's later than many think in these industries. And they're not forgetting construction either.

So the principles are being set by corset and brassiere seamstresses and meat cutters and typographers.

They'll set some big headlines, these handfuls, in coming months.

Early Arms Pact Approval Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional leaders say they expect speedy ratification of the arms limitation agreements President Nixon brought home from the Moscow summit.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield and Republican leader Hugh Scott gave that assessment after they and a bipartisan group of 28 other House and Senate leaders were briefed on the accords Friday by Nixon and his national security adviser, Henry A. Kissinger.

Mansfield said he found the private briefing more persuasive than Nixon's nationally broadcast address to Congress Thursday night.

Excluded from the White House session, however, were all of the most vocal critics of the arms-limitation agreements.

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said he expects the accords to be presented formally to Congress next week.

There are two sections: one limiting the Soviet Union and the United States to current levels of offensive missiles, including those under construction. That must be endorsed by a simple majority of the House and Senate.

The other agreement limiting each nation to two defensive antiballistic missile installations needs two-thirds approval of the Senate.

Critics have warned that the accords could permit the Soviet Union to establish nuclear arms superiority over the United States.

But Scott said Nixon and Kissinger "made the point that we are militarily so strong as not to be endangered" by the arms curbs.

Jury Unaware Angela Drawn Into Hijacking

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Angela Davis was unwittingly dragged into a $500,000 skyjacking the day her murderk idnap-conspiracy trial went to the jury—but jurors deliberated for five hours never knowing of conflicting reports that four men were demanding her freedom.

The reports Friday, shortly after the jury received the case in the 13-week-old trial, brought the 28-year-old Miss Davis rushing back to the tightly guarded courthouse from a late lunch at a penthouse restaurant with her attorneys.

While Miss Davis sat in the chambers of Superior Court Judge Richard E. Arnason, a hijacker picked up $500,000 at San Francisco International Airport and took off. Western Airlines said the hijacker, a black man in an Army uniform, claimed to have three accomplices but the crew and passengers saw no one else.

The all-white jury of seven women and five men deliberated in a locked second-story room several hundred feet away, oblivious to the hijacking.

The report that Miss Davis was included in the hijackers' demands originated in Seattle, but later a variety of sources questioned this.

The jurors planned to return today to resume deliberations.

Less than an hour before the hijacking, Miss Davis showed up at a vigil outside the courthouse, chatted with friends and family on the grassy lawn and bounced a 4-month-old girl on her knee.

The Rev. Cecil Williams, pastor of Glide Memorial church in San Francisco and Miss Davis' spiritual advisor, said the vigil would continue throughout the jury's deliberations "as an expression of solidarity with Angela."

Miss Davis is accused of furnishing four guns and helping plot a courthouse escape attempt Aug. 7, 1970 in hopes of freeing the man she loved— Soledad Brother George Jackson. The escape failed, gunfire erupted and four were killed.

At the end of his instructions Friday, Arnason gave the jury 11 different printed forms and told them they could choose from 12 verdicts—five possible verdicts on both the murder and kidnap counts and two on the conspiracy count.

The judge told the jury they must reach a separate verdict on each count and said both Miss Davis and the prosecution have the right to "a just verdict regardless of what the consequences must be."

Dusty Old Family Portrait Found To Be Masterpiece

LONDON (AP) — Two sisters have discovered that a dusty old family portrait that has hung unnoticed in their home for 40 years is a Gainsborough masterpiece no one even knew existed, art experts said today.

The painting, valued by an unsuspecting insurance agent in the 1930s at only $2,600, may be worth as much as $338,000.

The sisters stumbled on the art treasure last week when they turned up the old insurance valuation as they cleared up the effects of their late father, Maj. J. Townshend.

They called Sotheby's, the British art dealers, about selling the three-foot square portrait. Sotheby's expert Andrew Festing made a routine check of the painting at the sisters' home in southeast England and discovered that it was actually a Gainsborough.

Sotheby's said the portrait," The Grosvenor Family," was an unrecorded masterpiece by the famed 18th century English artist and was painted before he began his famous landscape series.

"The discovery of such an important work by a great British artist is almost without precedent," a spokesman for the dealers said.

He said the painting is comparable to "Mr. and Mrs. Robert Andrews," considered by many experts to be Gainsborough's greatest work.

Two Networks Ordered To Give Chisolm Equal Time

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two television networks have been ordered to make equal time available to Rep. Shirley Chisholm to counter televised appearances of her two top rivals for the Democratic presidential nomination.

The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ordered the Federal Communications Commission Friday to direct the Columbia Broadcasting System to provide a half hour of prime time to Mrs. Chisholm by June 5, the day preceding the crucial June 6 California presidential primary.

And it directed the FCC to order the American Broadcasting Co. to include Mrs. Chisholm in its June 4 program of Issues and Answers or provide her with a half hour of prime time.

Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota and George McGovern of South Dakota have appeared together on shows telecast by CBS and the National Broadcasting Co. and they are scheduled guests Sunday on ABC's Issues and Answers program.

The FCC had turned down her request on grounds the Humphrey-McGovern appearances were not true debates. The agency said they were exempted from the equal-time rule as "bona fide news interviews."

The three-judge court overturned the FCC, saying the appearances were, indeed, debates.

Mayor Sam Yorty of Los Angeles, also a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, also appealed to the FCC, and was similarly turned down.

He had been turned down earlier by a San Francisco federal appeals court and later sent telegrams to the networks and FCC Chairman Dean Burch demanding that he be included in any equal time order for Mrs. Chisholm.

Mrs. Chisholm, who was campaigning in Linden, N.J., Friday, said of the court decision: "This kind of victory is so meaningful to me because ... I do not have the tremendous sums of money that people now seem to need to run for elective office in this country."

Downed U.S. Flier Rescued After Eluding Reds 23 Days

SAIGON (AP) — A U.S. Air Force pilot who for 23 days evaded North Vietnamese troops, some coming within 20 feet of his hideaway, was rescued by a fleet of planes and helicopters deep in enemy territory Friday.

"There didn't seem like much hope, but I never gave up," Capt. Roger C. Locher, 28, of Sabetha, Kan. said today after he was lifted out by 30 to 40 aircraft under a hail of enemy gunfire in steep mountainous terrain northwest of Hanoi.

Locher, who is credited with shooting down three North Vietnamese MIG interceptors, was shot down May 10 on his 407th combat mission. The second crewman aboard the F4 is missing, the Air Force said.

"I'm a little weak but I'll pick it back up," said Locher, whose weight dropped from 180 pounds to 150 during the ordeal.

"I shaved a couple of times for the hell of it," he said in a telephone interview from his Thailand base. "There was nothing else to do. I used a surgical knife from my survival kit. I was getting to look pretty sc rubby."

Locher still had several days growth of beard and a big grin when the rescue helicopter landed him at the base.

When Locher bailed out of his crippled Phantom, he kept moving.

"I ate assorted fruits from the trees and imagined they were steaks. I drank rain and stream water and imagined it was root beer. I was getting pretty hungry. But I never had any trouble sleeping, only when it rained."

Several times. Locher recalled, North Vietnamese troops got as close as 20 feet to his position but never detected him.

Locher could hear F4 jets screaming overhead as they streaked to their targets deep inside North Vietnam day after day.

Auditor's Office Hot GOP Discussion Issue

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Five Republican candidates for governor and lieutenant governor of Missouri faced questions from more than 300 persons at the Missouri Federation of Republican Women's convention Friday night.

The hottest issues were the possible loss of the state auditor's office to a Democrat and the St. Louis airport to Illinois.

Christopher Bond, state auditor, said he would appoint his successor if he is elected governor.

Disagreeing sharply was Rep. R.J. King Jr. of Clayton, also seeking the nomination for governor.

"Anyone holding an office could not be sworn in until they resigned their present office," King said. "No individual can hold two offices."

King said Gov. Warren E. Hearnes could appoint a Democrat as auditor between Bond's resignation and his being sworn in as governor.

Another gubernatorial candidate, Rep. Stephen Burns of Des Peres, said he understood the Democrats "have already bartered off who the auditor will be."

Bond pointed out that Hearnes did not resign as secretary of state before he was sworn in as governor for his first term. "When a man takes a second office, the first becomes vacant at that instant," he said. "At the instant I become governor, not before, the auditor's office would become vacant."

Two candidates for the nomination for lieutenant governor argued over the location for a proposed St. Louis airport. Joseph L. Badaracco, president of the St. Louis aldermen board, said he favored the Illinois site. Rep. William C. Phelps of Kansas City said "I can't imagine a lieutenant governor of Missouri promoting an airport in Illinois."

Badaracco said Missouri has not put up money or a more suitable site, and an Illinois location close to downtown St. Louis would be better than a distant Missouri site.

Phelps said, "I don't think we should lie down and let the major development in eastern Missouri in this decade go to Illinois."

Bond said the airport probably will go to Illinois because the Hearnes administration had made no plans to build one. "We are 10 years behind Illinois," Bond said. "It may be too late now."

Other candidates included Gene McNary, St. Louis County prosecutor, and Harvey F. Euge of St. Louis, both for governor; Rep. Marvin Kennon, Gregory Hansman of University City, and William B. Ewald, all for lieutenant governor.

McNary rejected the proposed state compensation for victims of violent crimes. He said he "real problem is to strengthen our justice system."

McNary suggested the state experiment with the welfare system.

Mr. And Mrs. Collins Will Live In Kentucky

Mrs. Michael Wesley Collins

The wedding of Rebecca Lynn Cummins and Michael Wesley Collins was solemnized in a candlelight ceremony May 16 at 7:30 p.m. at the Trinity Baptist church of Sikeston.

The bride is the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. George W. Cummins, Jr. of Sikeston and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley P. Collins of Cairo, Ga.

The father of the bride, the Rev. George W. Cummins, Jr., performed the double ring ceremony. He was assisted by the bride's grandfather, Dr. George W. Cummins of Atlanta.

Miss Sarah Beth Chatham, of Shelbyville, Ky., was soloist. She sang "One Hand, One Heart" prior to the ceremony, and "The Lord's Prayer" following the ceremony of the candles as the couple knelt at the altar. She was accompanied at the organ by Mrs. Lewis Conley of Sikeston.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of candlelight satin peau de soie created especially for her by her mother. The gown featured an Empire A-line silhouette with a Victorian neckline and sheer yoke of English illusion. The bodice and neckline were overlaid with hand-clipped imported re-embroidered Alencon lace and accented with tiny pearls. Points of the lace extended onto the sheer yoke and also on the skirt of her gown. The long sleeves of peau de soie were inlaid at the wrist with the same lace and fastened with tiny covered buttons and loops.

The back of her gown, with sheer yoke and lace bodice, was highlighted by two small bows of peau de soie, and closed with tiny covered buttons and loops. Matching hand-clipped re-embroidered Alencon lace with pearl accents encircled the skirt and completely edged the attached chapel length train.

The bride wore a matching headpiece of peau de soie, Alencon lace, and pearls fashioned for her by an aunt. A full length veil of imported silk illusion was attached. She carried a Colonial bouquet of white sweetheart roses interspersed with pale pink sweetheart roses and babysbreath.

Miss Sally Johnson of Hobson, Virginia, was maid of honor. The bridal attendants were Miss Cindy Cummins, sister of the bride, of Sikeston; Miss Sandy Pitzer of Hillsboro, Ohio; and Miss Glenda Robertson of Paducah, Ky.

Their floor-length dresses of pale pink crepe featured empire bodices with long sleeves. Pearl and irridescent trim accented the bodice neckline and sleeves of the dresses. They wore pearl-trimmed Juliet caps of matching pink crepe with attached fingertip veils of pale pink illusion. They carried a single long-stemmed deep pink rose with ribbon streamers.

Miss Jane Ellen Pinkstaff, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Pinkstaff of Sikeston, was flowergirl. She wore a floor-length dress of pale pink crepe with Empire bodice and short puffed sleeves. Her dress was accented by a deep pink picot edge velvet ribbon sash with matching bow and streamers in her hair. She carried a lace basket containing pale pink sweetheart roses and baby's breath.

The groom chose his nephew, Lewis Sumner of Cairo, as his best man. Groomsmen were Dave Barry of Cincinnati, Ohio; Stan Lafferty of Bedford, Indiana; and Dale Morgan, cousin of the bride, of LaGrange, Ky.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church parlor. Serving guests at the reception were Mrs. Davis Morgan, Mrs. M. C. Pitts, and Mrs. John McKenzie, all aunts of the bride.

Miss Chyrl Curry of Sikeston attended the guest book, and presented scrolls containing the ceremony of the candles to guests as they arrived.

Miss Pamela McKenzie, cousin of the bride, passed rice bags to guests at the reception.

Out of town guests for the wedding included Mrs. Eugene Morgan, Middletown, Kentucky and Mrs. George W. Cummins, Atlanta, both grandmothers of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Davis Morgan, LaGrange, Ky.; Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Pitts, Middleton, Ky. David and Pamela McKenzie, Louisville; Mr. and Mrs. Wesley P. Collins, Mrs. Ruth Collins, Mrs. Howard Sumner, all of Cairo, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Bishop and Richard, Tallahassee, Fla.; and Leslie E. Cook, Washington, D. C.

The bride graduated from Georgetown College, Georgetown, Ky. this year. She majored in elementary education and is a member of Sigma Kappa social sorority. She will teach in Corinth, Ky. in the fall.

The groom is a pre-med student at Georgetown College. He will graduate in 1973 with a major in biology and a minor in chemistry.

Ann Landers

Parents Disapprove Of Grad's Salutation

Dear Ann Landers: Some cats who read this will think it's a phony letter but any kind who is strung out on drugs will know it's on the level. And that's the kid I want to reach.

I started with pot -- a little harmless smoking. Potheads laugh when they hear the squares say grass leads to stronger stuff. I laughed too, but I must admit that's the way it was with me. The second step was "only an experiment." I wanted to see how much acid I could drop before I blew my mind or it blew me. I was cool, man, like shaping up for a moon shot. I got everything together and then I called a buddy to sit with me in case I hit a bummer. This is the unwritten law for acid-heads. You gotta come when a buddy calls. The sitter smokes pot but he doesn't join you in needle art.

What happened in the next 24 hours I'll never know for sure but I woke up in a hospital. I got too much LSD on the second quirt. I ran out of the place onto the roof, trying to fly. Finally I crashed through a skylight. I t took me three days to get it all together. Even then I wasn't sure who I was or what had happened. I made up my mind that God had given me a second chance to live. It was like coming back from the dead. I swore never to touch another needle, a cigaret, a pill, or apipe, and to tell my story whereever I could get an audience of one. Thanks, Ann-- Reborn In Omaha

Dear Omaha: Your audience today is slightly larger. Would you believe 54 million? Thanks for telling your story.

Dear Ann Landers: Several months ago our son married a girl we were not very fond of, but we made up our minds to accept her and we have done so. Jeff and his wife live 700 miles from here. Before they moved, Jeff promised that he or his wife would write us a short letter every week instead of spending money on the long distance telephone.

They have kept their word. I would like to know, however, why a 22-year-old college graduate would start a letter to her in-laws with "Hello" and close with "So long for now." Can you explain this, please? My husband and I are baffled. - Riverside Readers

Dear Riv: It's obvious the girl is evading the traditional "Dear ———" because you are not dear to her and she is letting you know it. Her casual close is a devise for skirting the customary sentimental sign-off.

I hope the relationship improves, for your son's sake. I can feel the Arctic breezes from here.

Dear Ann Landers: You sometimes change your advice when your readers convince you you've made a mistake. I hope you will reconsider your answer to the woman who asked if she should tell her best friend that her husband is cheating.

I think it's stinking for the wife to be kept in ignorance while everyone else is whispering behind her back. What kind of friendship is it to keep your eyes covered, your eyes plugged and your mouth shut?

A friend of mine has been cheated on like crazy for three months. Her husband is a doctor and he is having an affair with the nurse in his office. Everyone knows it but the man's wife. I haven't told her because my husband has made me promise I wouldn't. He says you are against telling the wife, too. Please change your views, Ann. I want to tell her as an act of kindness.--Des Moines

Dear D.M.: Don't do her any favors. It's a hundred -to-one bet she knows and is playing dumb so she can hold her head up. Permit her this dignity.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How To Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, self addressed envelope to this newspaper.

Wed In Water

EPERNAY, France (AP) — Mayor Bernard Stasi married two couples Thursday night at the bottom of the Epernay swimming pool.

The wedding party donned skin diving outfits and the vows were exchanged with printed signs. the couples are members of the local skin diver's club.

Births

BROOKS — Mr. and Mrs. Donald Brooks of Advance are the parents of their first child, a son, born Thursday at 3:56 p.m. in the Missouri Delta Community Hospital. He weighed seven pounds, 12 and one half ounces, and has been named Christopher Lee.

Mrs. Brooks is the former Sue Bess, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Bess, Chaffee. Brooks is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wade Brooks of Advance. He is employed by Reutzel Construction Co.

Water Bed For Labor

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Expectant mothers at a San Jose hospital are enthusiastic about the latest piece of equipment in the maternity ward — a waterbed.

"We haven't had any trouble in getting women to use it," said Dr. Robert Goodlin, associate director of obstetrics at Valley Medical Center.

The $1,000 was designed to help ease labor pains and has been in use for two weeks.

When delivery begins the patient is moved to a convention, firm delivery bed.

An unexpected child can really rock the cradle.

Don't get us wrong.
We think children are priceless, too.
But if a child happens to be unplanned, it could mean financial pressures.
You see, a child is not just an extra mouth to feed. It's a whole other life to be provided for.
And that takes money.
Fact is, the cost to raise a child to age 18 ran around $25,000 (more for some, less for others, dependent on family income) in the mid-60's. And what inflation will do to the cost in the future is anybody's guess!
But no matter what the amount is, it's easy to see that the cost of rearing children is an economic reality one can't ignore. That is, if each child is to get what he or she deserves.
Which is why we advise every couple to plan how many children they want. And when they want them: when they can be a welcome addition rather than an accidental burden.
Because, as we all know, it's awfully hard to give with a full heart when one's pockets are empty.

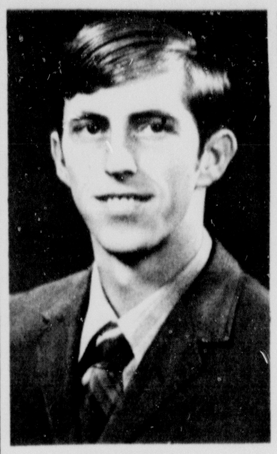
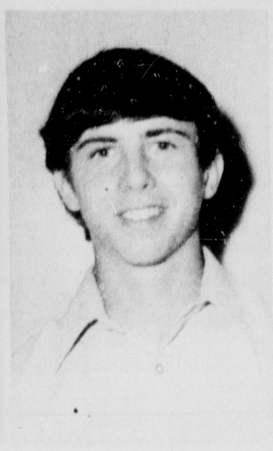
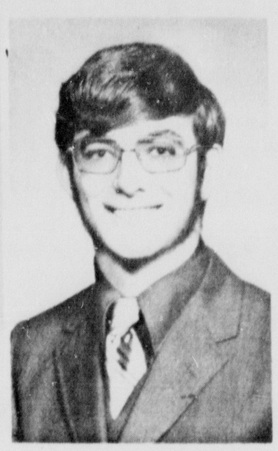
SEMO All-Staters



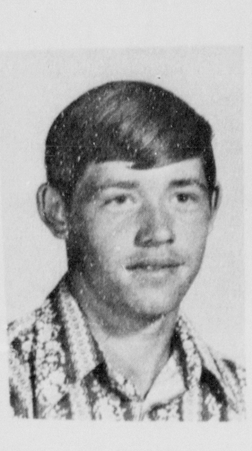
Mike Morrow



Steve Volkerding

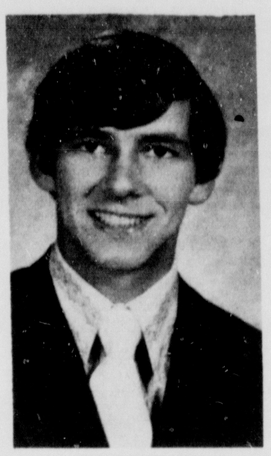


Parker Morgan

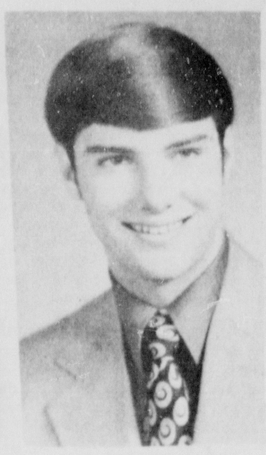


Dell Walker

Grant Dambach



Pat McClarty



Randy Johnson

Lilbourn, Bernie, Hayti Stars

The Missouri Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association has selected the top 21 high school baseball players for all-state recognition. Nearly 3,000 athletes competed in the sport throughout the state.

Lafayette's Mike Umfleet and Springfield Hillcrest's Bob Detherage were unanimous choices for the shortstop and outfield positions.

Among those 21 stars were seven Southeast Missourians. Three were named to the first team and four for the second. An additional 17 SEMO athletes received honorable mention.

Cape Girardeau Central and Lilbourn, two pre-season favorites to represent the district in the state tournament, had two players each selected. Both teams struggled late in the campaign and bowed out in sub-district play.

Steve Volkerding was picked as a first team outfielder. Teammate Randy Johnson got the nod as the second team left handed pitcher.

Lilbourn's Pat McClarty was a repeater in the outfield and Grant Dambach was the second team shortstop.

Mike Morrow, Kelly second baseman, and Parker Morgan, Hayti catcher were first team picks. Bernie's Dell Walker was the second team first sacker.

Descriptions of the all-staters and the honorable mentions:

FIRST TEAM

MIKE MORROW — Mike Morrow terminates a successful high school baseball career. The second baseman has had 45 appearances at the plate and has only been struck out twice, both times in regional play against Lafayette. our home runs, 15 runs batted in and 21 hits are among the achievements of the Kelly High School player. Morrow has excelled in baseball and basketball. In baseball he has a .467 batting average and holds a position on the first all-state team.

STEVE VOLKERDING — With one year of high potential, Cape Girardeau Central's talented outfielder has given an remarkable showing so far. Volkerding has used his effectiveness at the plate and his performance record in the field to attain election to the all-district team and on to receive all-state appointment to the first team. Volkerding connected for 19 hits in 48 attempts to form his .408 batting percentage. His achievements include four doubles, one triple, and three homers. He is credited with 16 runs scored and 21 runs batted in.

PARKER MORGAN — Hayti's senior catcher Morgan should be acknowledged as a fantastic player. Ending a successful high school hitch this year, his performance has been exceptional gaining him all-district recognition. Going to the plate 51 times he has accomplished nine singles, eight doubles, and six home runs to form his .451 batting average. Morgan let only one stolen base slip by him. His evasiveness on the bases accounts for 13 stolen bases. He has scored 21 runs and has batted in 32 for the Tigers.

SECOND TEAM

DELL WALKER — The fiery hurler and infielder for the Bernie Mules has given an outstanding performance. The junior has shared the bulk of the pitching with Chuck Owens for the Mules but is chosen for his excellent record on first base and his batting percentage. Earlier he received all-district honors. From the plate he has accomplished a batting average of .401.

GRANT DAMBACH — With one more highly expectant year to play for the Lilbourn, Dambach is one of the hopeful leaders for next year's squad. Recognized as the best fielding shortstop in the southern portion of this area from south of Sikeston the robust junior has great range and an excellent arm. At bat 37 times, he has made good 16 hits. His achievements include 14 runs scored and 10 RBIs, with a .432 batting percentage. He leads his team in this and in runs scored.

PAT MCCLARTY — A successful season has returned Lilbourn's left-handed outfielder to the all-state second team. The talented fielder, moundsman, and batter is a veteran of last year's all-state second team and of the all-district team. He has come back this year batting .400 by connecting for 14 hits, three doubles, one homer and ten singles, in 36 attempts. McClarty has contributed 13 runs scored and chalked up 12 RBIs. His fielding for the Lilbourn Panthers has been more than satisfactory and he has shown promise on the mound.

RANDY JOHNSON — The strong pitching arm of Cape Girardeau Central's southpaw led him to the all-district selection and now has carried him all the way to the selection to the all-state second team. Throughout his high school career he has been one of the notable players for the Tigers and has established a reputation as one of the hottest pitchers. Supporting a 6-1 record in his 48 innings of play, Johnson has held the opposition to 11 runs, three earned, and only allowed 24 hits. His achievements include 93 strikeouts.

Honorable Mention

INFIELDERS.....

ERIC LITTELL — Attracting a lot of attention this year, Littell is one of the area's foremost catchers and is equally skilled at the plate. A senior at Gideon High School, Littell was selected to the all-district team and has gained all-state honors. He has gone to bat 31 times and connected for 13 hits, four homers, and an additional 14 runs batted in. Ending a successful season and a active high school career he has a .419 batting percentage.

TED CARBAUGH — Illmo-Scott City High School's second baseman Carbaugh, carried this season's achievements to gaining election to the first team all-district and on to being honored on the all-state level. A leading player for the Rams, he is credited with 12 hits, including one triple and three doubles, from 36 attempts. Ending his high school baseball competition, he has finished on a favorable note having a batting average of .389.

MITCHELL ALLEN — Lilbourn's right-handed third baseman Allen, has gained a reputation as one of the outstanding players in the area. Going to bat 41 times, he made good 17 of his efforts, scoring 10 runs and batting in 11 in the process. He was the leading man this season for the Panthers in hits and boasts a batting percentage of .422. A junior this year, he shows a great deal of potential for next year.

RICK EISENBACH — Sophomore shortstop Eisenbach has been chosen from the Sikeston squad for all-state honors. Effective in his position and a hard man to catch when it comes to stealing bases, he has only been charged with two errors all season and is responsible for stealing nine bases, only being thrown out once. His record at the plate includes a batting percentage of .320 and 20 hits from his attempts. He shows great potential.

JOHN LEIBLE — Another sophomore baseballer whose great potential is John Leible. This season he has been a key man at the plate and is considered one of the better catchers. On the basis of his catching ability and his excellent batting record he has been honored on the all-conference team, all-district, and all-state honorable mention. At bat, he has received credit for 22 hits including one home run. He represents the Sikeston squad with a .390 batting average.

(OUTFIELDERS)

DAVE REIMINGER — Jackson High School's outstanding outfielder Reiminger, has battled to the all-district nomination and to all-state honors. A senior he has shown his skill in fielding and at the plate. His batting percentage is .321.

MIKE GARRARD — Batting .360 this season, Garrard had become one of themost valuable players for the Parma Pirates. The senior outfielder proved to be a blockade in the field. His performance at the plate was impressive as he was a leader in that department.

PITCHERS

JEFF JACKSON — The pitching prodigy from Kelly High School ended the season with a 9-1 record. He was chosen for all-district earlier. The sophomore allowed only four earned runs and 32 base hits during his 64-inning career while throwing out 100 men. Jackson has abatting average of .340.

MIKE HILL — The senior moundsman for the Puxico Indians was elected to the all-district second team. Closing out a high school career, he boasts a 5-1 season record. In 56 innings he has struck out 99 men, giving up eight hits. Supporting an estimated .35 earned run average, Hill has given up three earned runs and three unearned. His performance at the plate has been amazing, with his batting percentage reaching the .600 mark. With 20 times at bat he connected for three singles, three doubles, three triples, and thre home runs.

CHUCK OWENS — The high school pitcher's pitching ability for two years has been in the spotlight. He has received the distinction of being an all around fine player in every position on the Bernie squad. Owens finished the season with a .389 batting average.

The Scottsdale, Ariz., Cowboys won the midget division (90 to 125 pounds) title in Pop Warner Junior League football last season.

City League

Bank Blanks Brothers Club , 21-0

Andy Rogers' two-hit pitching and Bank of Sikeston's 23-hit attack paved the way for the Bankers' 21-0 shutout over Brothers Club in the Musial League opener. Standridge homered and tripled and with Blanton, Spring, Rogers, Williams, and Dodd, collected three hits.

Robert Howard picked up the loss for the Brothers and had the teams' only two hits.

In the nightcap, home runs from Kingsway's Crenshaw and Abshere highlighted the Plaza's 10-1 win over Nunnelee. Chappell picked up the one-hit victory. Glaus took the loss.

Police picked up a three-hit, 8-0 shutout over Jenkins in American League play last night. Ziegler's home run and Grant's triple, double, and single paced the winners' nine-hit attack.

Blanton picked up the win. Shaner suffered the loss.

Close contests marked play in both National League battles last night as Pizza Inn dumped Legion, 5-3, and the Lions beat Lewis, 7-5, at Puckett Field.

Pizza Inn halted a last inning, one-run rally with the tying and winning runs on base to collect the opening win. Love paced the Inn with two hits. Marks picked up the win from the mound.

Lions sent four runners home in the fifth inning to take command of the nightcap and collected the 7-5 victory. Brashear and Dement powered the Lions with two hits each.

Vaught collected the win, Francis the loss.

Davis and Byrd battered IBEW in Junior Babe Ruth play with a 21-7 decision at V.F.W. Stadium. A seven-run last inning capped D and B's scoring spree. D and B outhit IBEW, 8-7. Shell and Stokes each collected two hits and scored two runs. for the winners.

Keller went the distance. Cobb received the loss.

Cloud Seeding May Come In Missouri

JEFFERSON CITY' Mo. – A Missouri ad hoc committee on weather modification has been appointed, reports Commissioner of agriculture Dexter Davis. The committee, acting in an advisory capacity, will study and make recommendations on weather modification operations in the state as a weapon against farm losses due to drought, Davis said.

Cordell Tindall of Fayette, editor of Missouri Ruralist, was named chairman of the committee that consists of L.C. Carpenter, MFA, Columbia; C.R. Johnston, Missouri Farm Bureau Federation, Jefferson City; Don Hill NFO, Phillipsburg; David Sutton, Area Development Agent, St. Joseph; Davis; J. Vernon Martin, U.S. Soil Conservation Service, Columbia; Paul Viehl, farmer, Mexico; J.P. Carmen, Missouri Agri-Industries Council , Paris; Dave Horner, National Weather Service, Columbia; Cliff Summer, Water Resources Board, Jefferson City; Larry Ehlert, business man, St. Joseph; and Wayne Decker, Atmospheric Science Department, University of Missouri, Columbia.

According to the Commissioner, the committee is an outgrowth of an initial Southern Great Plains Weather Modification Conference held at Oklahoma City in October 1971 that was attended by several Missourians, including a representative of the Department of Agriculture;

This past April an interstate weather modification conference was again conducted at Oklahoma City, at which Governor David Hall officially signed Oklahoma House Bill No. 1526, known as "Oklahoma Weather Modification Act," and presented copies of the bill to those in attendance as a sample piece of legislation for other states represented – Arizona, Colorado, Iowa, Kansas, New Mexico, Missouri and Texas – to follow. The Oklahoma bill sets up rules providing for the regulation of weather modification operations and for powers and duties of the Department of Agriculture in carrying out the operations.

Cloud seeding by planes has been successful in bringing rain to parched areas of Southwest Oklahoma. When planes spewed chemicals into a towering storm front near Altus, Okla. last September, the action resulted in 10 inches of rain in an area where only a total of 24.61 inches fell in 1971. The state has been granted a $225,000 federal weather modification contract this year to increase rain over eight counties in the dust bowl.

"Missouri farmers and related agri-business leaders view this Oklahoma research and legislation as a great step toward relieving drought situations," Commissioner Davis declared. "The project was presented to Governor Warren E. Hearnes and he quickly agreed that Missouri should plan to utilize all advancement in weather modification to alleviate water shortages in the state. He immediately appointed

BLOOMFIELD — Now is a good gime to take inventory to see what your prospects for pasture during the dry summer and early fall seasons will be. As you know, we cannot expect too much from permanent pastures during this period. Both milk production and beef cattle gains are usually quite discouraging where we rely on permanent pastures for dry-season grazing.

Providing some good supplementary grazing during the dry summer and early fall will pay off in two ways. First, this supplementary grazing will result in much higher production of both meat and milk than would be produced by permanent pasture. In the second place, giving permanent pastures a rest while supplementary pastures are being grazed during the dry summer and early fall will allow permanent pastures to build up reserves, which, in turn, will result in more winter grazing from permanent pastures than would be the case if cattle stayed on them during this period.

Several farmers in this area seed lespedeza in their wheat, and lespedeza, if available, will provide excellent pasture during the dry summer season. This is especially important for beef cattle as lespedeza will produce better beef gains during the dry summer weather than any other crop produced in the area.

Sudan, including sudan hybrids and sorghum-sudan crosses, are also excellent supplementary pasture crops for summer and early fall use. In fact, it has proven to be the best supplementary pasture for beef cattle in cases where sufficient lespedeza will not be available for summer and early fall grazing. Sudan is a good supplementary pasture crop from several standpoints. It is well adapted to a wide range of soil types. It has a unique ability to do well on thin upland soils especially when adequate fertilizer is used. It will provide grazing within 30 to 45 days from seeding. It provides lots of grazing even under dry weather conditions. Under ordinary weather conditions, sudan, if properly managed, can be expected to support two mature cows per acre. In many cases it has been known to carry as many as three cows per acre.

If you plan to seed some sudan for supplementary grazing this summer, now is a good time to do this job. Sudan should be seeded by the end of the first week in June for maximum production. Seedings made later than this cannot usually be expected to produce as much grazing. Soil preparation for sudan should be similar to that normally made for corn. Sudan should be fertilized about like corn including the use of 60 to 100 pounds of nitrogen per acre with phosphate and potash being applied accordingly to soil needs as determined by a soil test. The seed should be drilled to about a one inch depth at the rate of 25 to 30 pounds of seed per acre.

Certified seed of either the Piper or Greenleaf varieties is recommended. Other sudan grasses including sudan hybrids and sorghum-sudangrass crosses generally contain higher levels of prussic acid than Piper or Greenleaf. However, in University of Missouri yield trials most commercially available sudangrass hybrids or sorghum-sudan hybrids,equalled or exceeded yields of Piper or Greenleaf.

Pearl Millet is a warm season annual that may be used for the same purposes as sudangrass. It will not form prussic acid, so it can be grazed safely at any stage of growth. It is more productive in hot, dry conditions but less productive in cool, moist conditions than sudangrass. Gahi-1 is the recommended variety. Cultural practices for pearl millet are about the same as for sudangrass. It should be seeded after normal corn planting time when the soil temperaturesare above 60 degrees F. Fertilizer recommendations for this crop are the same as for sudangrass. Rate of seeding should be about 20 pounds per acre.

Steps taken now to provide good supplementary grazing for beef cattle and dairy herds will pay good dividends later on when pastures are short.

Good Pastures Assist Beef Production

Missouri is developing into a major beef producing state. The increase in our cattle numbers is partly due to better pasture management.

Through pasture improvement and proper management the pounds of beef produced per acre has increased.

The main thing is to have enough cattle to use the forage produced but still not overgraze the area. Grasses need a rest period in between grazing to regain their growth.

This may be achieved through the use of three or four pasture fields of about the same size. The field size can be adjusted by using either temporary or permanent cross fences. The cattle can graze one field for several days while the other fields regain their growth.

The use of cross fences is also helpful if only a part of a pasture system needs to be replanted. The fences allow grazing on old pastures while the new field becomes established.

In the winter months when the grass is short of dormant, any excess forage stockpiled from the prior growing season can be fed as hay. In the dry summer months when grass is short hay can be fed, or supplemental pastures can be used, to prevent overgrazing.

To produce the greatest yields and maintain good pastures it is important to topdress at least once a year. If the pasture grasses are mixed with legumes the use of nitrogen may not be necessary. To select the proper fertilizer balance a soil test should be taken about every three to five years.

Brush and weeds in pastures can be controlled by mowing once or twice a year.

The proper location of a good water supply will also improve pasture useage. Soil Conservation Service will help farmers figure out the test system.

KILLINGS ON RISE

CHICAGO (AP) — A University of Chicago study shows that killings with guns increased 169 per cent in Chicago between 1965 and 1970.

Herbicides Control Weeds

By JOE H. SCOTT
State Extension Agronomist

PORTAGEVILLE -- Most soybean growers in Southeast Missouri are preparing to use a preemergence herbicide to hold down annual grasses and broadleaf weeds. This is a good practice. There are problems with large seeded weeds germinating too deep for preemergence weed killers to give effective control. The problem weeds that get the most attention are cocklebur, morningglory and velvet leaf (wild cotton).

Rotation of crops in the Bootheel would keep these weeds in check. Rotation is difficult to accomplish with large soybean acreage. Cultivation or postemergence weed killers or a combination of the two control troublesome broadleaf pests.

Several postemergence herbicides give effective control of cocklebur and morning glory at the Delta Center.

Remember that timing is important when using postemergence weed killers. The height of the soybeans and weeds have to be considered to control the weeds and avoid injuring the soybeans.

Dinoseb (dinitro) as well as Dyanap and Ancrack which contain dinoseb can be applied when beans are in the soil cracking stage to before soybean true leaves open. Dinoseb can also be used as a directed postemergence treatment when soybeans reach a height of 5 to 6 inches. Dinoseb should be directed toward the base of the soybean plant to wet the weeds as much as possible. Avoid spraying higher than 1/2 the height of the bean plant. Also, do not use after soybeans begin to bloom. Dinoseb is a good contact killer but can injure soybeans if label precautions are not followed.

2,4-DB (Butyrac 175 and Butoxone SB) will also control cocklebur and morningglory. Direct 2,4-DB to lower part of soybean plant when soybeans are 8 to 12 inches tall. The use of a preemergence herbicide will aid in gaining a height difference between weeds and soybeans, as best results are obtained if weeds are not over 3 inches high.

Linuron (Lorox) plus surfactant at a 1/2 lb. rate will give control of cocklebur and other wees if applied when conditions are favorable for good weed growth. Direct spray on weeds after soybeans reach 8 inches high and to the base of the plant. Do not spray too high or over the top of soybeans.

2,4-DB can aso be used as an emergency or salvage operation after cockleburs have outgrown the soybeans, and to keep from further reducing the yield. Use no more than 0.2 lbs. per acre of the amine form. Apply when the first buds start to form but not after mid-bloom. Injury may result if applied when beans are under drouth stress.

Weeds are easier to kill when they are small and don't let go to seed if at all possible.

Certification Deadline Nears

NEW MADRID — July 3, is the final date for the certification of a farmer's 1972 plantings and set- aside. At certification time, a farmer will need to make an accurate certification of his plantings of cotton, wheat, corn, milo, barley, soybeans and, or any other planted crop. He will need to certify accurately the acreage of set- aside and state the land use of set- aside on each farm.

HERBERT EDWARDS plants cotton as Aaron Walker follows the planting with a spray for broad-leaf weed control. Herbert Schuerenberg, farm manager says that the seed undergoes many preparations before and during planting. First, acid is used to remove fuzz then the seed is treated with fungicides. During planting the seeds are sprinkled with another seed fungicide to promote germination and covered with a systemic insecticide to control thrips, aphids and mites. The planting is on the Robert Matthews farm, one mile south of Sikeston.

Food-Stamp Plan Bonus Rural Development Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's $2-billion-a-year foodstamp program, aimed primarily at helping feed needy families, also is turning into one of the Agriculture Department's most effective rural development programs.

According to studies made of food-stamp operations in three predominantly rural counties in Tennessee, Iowa and New Mexico, each $1 spent in federal funds generated between $1.20 and $1.68 in additional local business.

Qualified families buy food stamps at fees based on their incomes and number of members. Then, under a formula, additional stamps or bonuses are given free to help increase purchasing power at retail food stores.

Nationally, a participant gets about $10 worth of food stamps for each $4.50 he spends on them.

The food-stamp study, published in a report by the Economic Research Service, was based on operations during 1970 in Haywood County, Tenn.; Appanoose County, Iowa; and Chaves, County, N.M.

"In each county," the report said, "the wholesaling sector had to increase its output to provide additional inputs to the food retailing sector. Suppliers to the wholesaling sector, in turn, had to increase their output."

The effect was a pyramiding of goods and services needed to supply the increase demand for more and improved food for the stamp clients, officials said.

Some of the findings:

—In Tennessee, between $1.20 and $1.26 worth of additional business was generated by every $1 worth of bonus stamps spent. Food stamps in Haywood County were equal only to 6 per cent of total household income but represented one-third of all food sales and nearly 10 per cent of all retail trade.

—As a result of stamps in Chaves County, N.M., 59 jobs were added to the economy and each bonus food dollar generated $1.57 to $1.68 worth of new wealth. Food stamps represented about 5 per cent of the county's total retail food sales.

—In Iowa, the program added 11 new jobs to the Appanoose County economy and produced $1.40 worth of new business for each $1 in stamp bonuses.

During 1970 bonus stamps in the three counties amounted to: Haywood $1.2 million; Appanoose $184,000; and Chaves $870,500.

Nationally, in March of this year, about 11.5 million persons participated in the food-stamp program

Sidedress Agrico Ammonia now... your last chance to boost yields

Now that your crops are planted, it's time to think about sidedressing them with Agrico anhydrous ammonia. There's no better way to supply nitrogen now than a sidedress application of Agrico ammonia.

With your crop up and beginning to grow, you might even say that this is your last chance to give your crop the extra nourishment boost that nitrogen can supply. Maybe you weren't able to give your crops all the nitrogen you wanted to apply earlier this spring. There's still time for an Agrico ammonia sidedressing.

Don't miss this last chance to apply extra nitrogen.

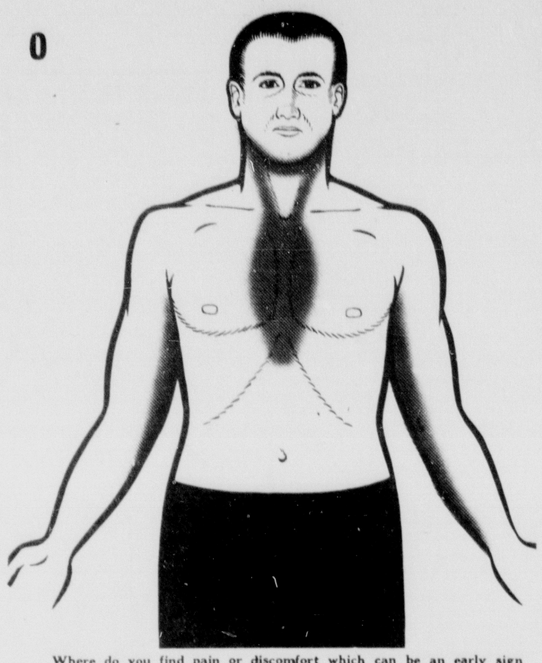
The Prayer
from
The Upper Room

Whosoever therefore shall humble himself as this little child, the same is greatest in the kingdom of heaven. (Matthew 18:4)

PRAYER: Heavenly Father, I come to Thee in childlike trust. I know that Thou wilt guide me, protect me, and love me every step of the way. My heart is filled with gratitude for the Master Teacher's assurance that we may look to Thee and say, "Our Father." Amen.



Where do you find pain or discomfort which can be an early sign of heart attack? Certainly in the center of the chest, where the heart is located, "under the necktie." But also, as sketched on the drawing, in the arms, jaws, neck or abdomen. Heart attack warning signs can occur in any, or all, of these areas. Most common combination is chest and arms, followed by chest, neck and jaws.

Heart Signs Meet Approval

CAPE GIRARDEAU — "Early attention can mean prevention."

A nationally known physician, Dr. Willard Krehl, made that statement during a 1967 visit to Missouri, when planning first began for an early warning signs public education project now underway to reach heart attack victims in a rural - urban area with a population of a million.

The quotation could be a theme for the project, which is financed by Heart Association funding.

"Heart attacks don't just happen," said Dr. Krehl at that time, "they develop."

As planners developed the program, they wondered what problems would develop for physicians and hospitals.

After the project had been in operation 30 days, questionnaires were sent to doctors and hospital officials, with these results --

Of the doctors who responded, 85 per cent indicated approval of early warning messages provided by newspapers, radio and TV stations; 9.5 per cent indicated degrees of disapproval; 94 per cent did not find the program had overloaded them or their staffs, and 83 per cent considered the program to be of merit.

More than half of the 37 hospitals in the area covered by the project responded and of these, 97 per cent said facilities had not been overloaded. About a third reported an increase in heart patient admissions.

(Heart attack admissions vary so much from week to week, project planners pointed out, that a patient record survey comparison for six months to a year before and after the program began will be required for a definitive finding.)

One hospital reported that during the project's first week, 37 patients with chest pains were seen in the emergency room, with a third admitted with actual or suspected heart attacks. In the week before the program, the hospital had seen 27 such patients, of which one-fourth had been admitted.

The program "is working," declared the reporting nurse. She added that facilities had not been overloaded; that patient anxiety had not been excessive.

One physician, a heart attack patient himself, reported on the questionnaire that "having experienced acute coronary thrombosis personally, the animated presentation of points of discomfort, pain, etc., was very real."

Patients' comments, as quoted by physicians responding to the questionnaire, included --

"They feel that the messages are helpful and educational."

"Observed heart program, need checkup."

"Surprised that symptoms could be so extensive."

"Didn't know there were such varied symptoms."

"Now I am worried about pains I took for granted as nothing."

"I wouldn't have known the pain might be serious."

Planners of the Missouri Heart Association project view it as a tribute to the power of the press.

One physician recalled a 1967 newspaper story, quoting a speech he made to a Heart Association dinner and mentioning heart attack warning signs.

Instead of colleagues scolding him for seeking publicity or scaring the public, as he feared, he encountered four persons on the subsequent weekend who had read the warning signs and wondered if they were experiencing them.

They were, it turned out, and quick treatment prevented heart damage.

Another physician noted on a survey questionnaire that "patient comments about this program certainly show that people do read the newspaper."

"I was quite impressed with the newspaper articles," said Mrs. Hazel Kohring, a St. Louis life insurance official and chairman of the Missouri Heart Association Public Education Committee. "Certainly the press is going all out to help with the Early Warning Signs."

Importance of the repetition which radio and TV are giving to the messages also is emphasized by the Early Warning Signs Physician's Advisory Committee.

One physician told of one of his patients, who had been briefed carefully about warning signs, but still nearly lost his life because of hesitation in calling for aid when an attack came. The doctor said he hoped such incidents would be ended by repetition of early warning signs to alert high risk patients, as well as the general public, to seek prompt medical aid, for a better chance of recovery.

The project, with two-year funding of $21,000, is geared to reduce the delay of decision time before a heart attack patient recognizes warning signs and/or gets medical aid. One six-month survey showed this to average 18 hours, compared with the first four hours critical for a heart attack victim.

A three-year statistical study will monitor the program to determine --

What public education works best with various age and schooling levels;

How to handle telephone calls to expedite care, giving priorities to emergencies;

The best methods of patient transportation;

Safe distances heart attack victims can travel;

Where initial care can best be given;

If doctor and patient decision time is cut by early warning signs education.

Beneficial side effects of the education drive get this prognosis:

Improvement of ambulance service;

More prompt and effective emergency room treatment;

Better facilities for subsequent care;

Improved ability of health professionals to recognize early warning signs so nurses and receptionists, for instance, can expedite emergency calls.

The project lists the symptoms as pressure, fullness, squeezing or aching in the front of the chest, where the heat is located; in the arms, neck, jaw, back, or abdomen, with possible shortness of breath, sweating, nausea, or vomiting.

Recognition of, and reaction to, these early warning signs of a heart attack, says the Missouri Heart Association, can fulfil Dr. Krehl's 1967 slogan -- "Early attention can mean prevention.'

What's The Law?

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Dr. Pullum was a very proper and straight-laced individual as far as dentists went. But one of his prettier patients insisted that he went too far, one afternoon, when he sat in her lap. Actually, the incident was more unfortunate than it was compromising. It seemed that while Dr. Pullum was drilling away in his attractive young patient's mouth, she suddenly swallowed at a very inopportune moment. The result? The dentist lost his balance, his drill slipped off her tooth cutting her gum and he landed in her lap.

Apologies, needless to say, did not suffice. Taking a dim view of the incident, the comely young patient sued the harassed dentist for his injuring her mouth and for sitting in her lap.

"What happened," pleaded Dr. Pullum in court, "wasn't my fault and it wasn't her fault. It was just one of those freakish things. Just when she swallowed, I was teethering over her teeth. She simply swallowed at the wrong time. Surely, the court's not going to swallow that."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make Dr. Pullum pay for his patient's injuries and for landing in her lap?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that a dentist must anticipate swallowing since everyone does it; that he must maintain his balance so that a patient's involuntary movement doesn't land him in his patient's lap.

(Based upon a 1961 Kentucky Court of Appeals Decision)

Employment Rises In April

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri's employment rose 12,100 to a total of 1,937,900 in April, Employment Security Director Herman Julien reported today.

The total was 31,500 below the number employed in Apri last year. Nonfarm wage and salaried employment accounted for 11,000 of the additional jobs.

Julien attributed the April boost to seasonal increases in construction and services.

Missouri's rate of unemployment in April was 5 per cent, compared with 5.2 per cent in March and in April, 1971. The work force increased by 9,500 but there were 4,000 fewer unemployed.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Saturday, June 3, the 155th day of 1972. There are 211 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1940, the Allied evacuation from France was completed in World War II. Some 337,000 British, French and Belgian troops had been transported to England.

On this date:

In 1621, the Dutch West India Company received a charter for New Netherlands—now New York.

In 1808, Confederate President Jefferson Davis, was born in what is now Todd County in Kentucky.

In 1935, the French liner Normandie broke speed records on her maiden voyage, crossing the Atlantic in 4 days, 11 hours.

In 1937, the Duke of Windsor married Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson of Baltimore in France.

In 1942, Japanese planes raided Dutch Harbor, Alaska, during the Pacific war.

In 1963, Pope John XXIII died.

Ten years ago: 130 persons, including a group of Atlanta, Ga., people on an art tour, were killed in an airliner crash near Orly Airport outside Paris.

Five years ago: 88 persons were killed when a chartered British airliner crashed in the French Pyrenees.

One year ago: James Hoffa announced from prison that he would not stand for re-election as president of the Teamsters Union.

"THAT'S NOT HOW I TRAINED YOU TO GET RID OF PEDDLERS!"

Jaycees First Prison Group Scout Sponsor

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Jeff Town Jaycees, made up of inmates at the Missouri State Prison here, have scored a first with the sponsorship of a Boy Scout troop.

The Boy Scout troop is believed to be the only troop sponsored by a prison organization.

About 10 to 12 underprivileged boys are members of Troop 73.

The charter of the new troop was presented Thursday at the first court of honor for the troop held in the prison gymnasium. The troop was founded at the prison last March under leadership of Scoutmaster erry Dempsey and Dr. Harold Waters, of Jefferson City.

Bill Tweedy, a scout executive of the Five Rivers District, said the troop carries on full scouting activities including regular meetings, hikes and overnight camping trips.

Dexter Man Arrested After Cars Collide

KENNETT — A 59-year-old Dexter man was arrested for careless and imprudent driving while drinking Thursday following a two-car crash on Independence Ave., police reported.

Investigation officers Lt. Jack Elliott and Patrolman Jack Davis reported Orval Samuel Keller was arrested after he pulled into the path of another car at 9:25 p.m.

The officers said Keller was driving a 1965 Buick south on Independence in the outside lane and attempted to make a left turn but pulled into the path of a 1970 Ford being driven by Gemberly A. Perkins, 25, Kennett, who was driving south in the inside lane. Perkins' car sustained damage to the right front and Keller's car was hit in the left side.

"KEEP YOUR LEGS STRAIGHT AND KICK EVENLY", Michael Euer, swimming instructor, tells Craig Fry, who is taking the Kiwanis Club learn-to-swim lessons at the East Prairie pool. Children Learning To Swim

EAST PRAIRIE — The third week of the Kiwanis learn-to-swim program will begin Monday at the city pool.

One hundred children have received free American Red Cross lessons during the past two weeks and 60 are enrolled for the final week.

Junior and senior lifesaving classes also are given each day from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. These students then assist Michael Euer in instructing beginners from 11 a.m. to noon, Monday through Friday.

The swimming program, sponsored by the city and the Kiwanis Club, has been taught by Euer four years.

The pool, which opened to the public May 30, is managed by James Barnhill and Ed McWilliams. Mrs. Judy Wood is head lifeguard, assisted by Terry Siggers, Karla Wood and Gary Baker . Alternates are Andy Ambrose and Steve Husk.

Saving Of Swamp Up To Public

By JOHN L. BLUE
Missourian Managing Editor

CAPE GIRARDEAU — D-day has been set for the salvaging of a portion of the old Mingo Swamp in Stoddard County as a microcosm of southeast Missouri as it existed through the eons of time.

The Fish and Wildlife Service of the Department of Interior has set June 28 for a public hearing to determine public interest in preserving 1,700 acres of the 21,646-acre Mingo National Wildlife Refuge in the National Wilderness Preservation System.

Those close to the situation report that unless there is an outpouring of interest from organizations and individual citizens the chance of preserving the area under the wilderness system is slim.

The hearing will be held at 7:30 p.m. in Puxico High School. Written statements may be mailed either to the Regional Director, Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife Twin Cities, Minn., 55111, or handed to the hearing officer at the hearing. Oral statements will be heard, but officials seek submission in writing of important facts and arguments.

The swamp, taken over by the federal government as a national wildlife refuge in 1944, is the last of the aboriginal swamplands which once covered Southeast Missouri.

It is not virgin in nature, wildlife biologists point out, because it was cut over, drained and farmed in the earlier years of this century. Yet it persisted and since the government take-over has made a remarkable recovery until today it is approaching over thousands of acres, the state in which it existed over the centuries of time.

One biologist told The Missourian that it is the only remaining wilderness area left in the entire Midwest — Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Illinois and other central states of the Mississippi Valley.

"We need this wilderness area," he said, asking not to be quoted by name, "because there were millions of acres in Southeast Missouri and up and down the Mississippi River that once were pretty much like Mingo.

"This is the only tract in Missouri and the only one left in the Mississippi Valley that has any chance of being a wilderness area. I think it would be a shame were we to destroy what people could see as the way this country existed over the years."

If Mingo were included in the Wilderness Act of Sept. 3, 1964, it would not mean that there would be no public use. Hunting, fishing, canoeing and similar items, but no motoring, would be permitted. The area, however, would be preserved as it is and as growth continues to develop without any further inroads by civilization.

The swamp is tremendous in its diversity and is unlike any other in existence anywhere, authorities relate.

It is situated at the very base of the Ozark Plateau, is midway between the south and the north and has characteristics of each -- unlike any other area in the country. Its flora and fauna are unique, and its diversity is great, experts note.

Here grow huge cypress trees, the remainder of the once great stands througout southeast Missouri, tupelo gum, overcup oak, pin oak, willow oak, cherry-bark oak, hickory — the swamp trees and the upland trees growing on three levels. There are rare flowers, many now considered endangered as are various wildlife species.

Wildlife has made a tremendous comeback in the protected area of the swamp, even to the point where hunting is permitted for the gray and red squirrels and for deer in season. Turkeys now abound, as do swamp creatures, including poisonous snakes and many fishes and other waterlife.

3 Sikeston Residents Hurt In Blast

Three Sikeston residents were injured in a railroad tank car explosion Thursday night at Dallas.

Treated for cuts from flying glass and released were Mrs. Claudette Scott, wife of John H. Scott, 916 Alexander St. her son, Ronald, and Scott's sister, Miss Mary Scott.

The Scotts were on vacation at his mother's home in Dallas.

Open Meeting Drive Endorsed By NDC Chief

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Rory Ellinger, state chairman of the New Democratic Coalition, has announced his full endorsement of the Citizens Lobby initiative petition drive which if ratified in November would virtually eliminate secrecy in government at state, county and local levels.

Ellinger, in a statement, urged all Missourians to support the petition drive which is headed by Carl Wilson, Kansas City, and Raymond Appleton, Columbia.

The Citizens Lobby needs to secure 92,000 signatures in Missouri's 10 congressional districts by the last part of June to place the petition on the ballot.

Ellinger said he was appalled at the recent refusal of members of the state legislature during their last session to take positive action on a bill which would have provided for open government.

County Clerk's Office Open On Saturday

BENTON — Scott County Clerk Bob Kielhofner has announced that his office in the courthouse will be open Saturday mornings beginning today, in order to give persons whose jobs will no not permit them to register to vote during the week to become eligible to vote Aug. 8 and Nov 7.

The county clerk said the office will be open from 8:30 a.m. to noon every Saturday from now through Aug. 5.

The deadline for registering for the Aug. 8 primary election is 28 days prior to that date, or July 10.

Beginning July 7 the office will have absentee ballots available for voting in the courthouse. The law provides that these absentee ballots be available to voters 30 days before the election.

Although voter registration must close on July 10, the office will be open on Saturdays for absentee voting on July 8, 15, 22, 29 and Aug. 5. Absentee ballots can also can be voted through the week during regular office hours from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. , the clerk said.

The clerk announced that Cyril Glueck, of New Hamburg, and Betty McConnell, city clerk of Miner, have been appointed deputy voter registration officers for the convenience of voters in those areas.

All towns in the county have voter registration supplies and deputies are commissioned in the city halls, so that voters can register throughout the county during city hall office hours in the towns, the clerk said.

Absentee ballots are available through the mail by sending a request with the address to the county clerk's office.

Seven Treated

Seven were treated for injuries in the emergency room at Missouri Delta Community Hospital Friday.

Throughout the day, Humphrey told audiences he didn't believe the results of the Mervin Field organiztion poll published Friday, which showed McGovern holding a commanding 46-26 per cent lead among California Democrats.

McGovern privately discussed his "income supplement" welfare proposal with Mills, chairman of the powerful House Ways and Means Committee, and said he hoped the Arkansas Democrat would join him in a proposed campaign swing through the South later this month.

HAZEL

MONDAY

Hazel helps to arrange a pajama party for Linda Blake, but Linda doesn't think Hazel can contribute anything to a pajama party for her friends. To keep from embarrassing Hazel, they arrange a party to include Hazel and Linda's friends.

TUESDAY

Dorothy and her friend Peggy Baldwin go antique hunting. Peggy buys a desk and Dorothy buys a piano. The husbands demand that they return the purchases, but Hazel convinces George to pay for the piano.

WEDNESDAY

The Johnsons, neighbors of the Baxters, offer their home as a polling place for voters of the town in an election.

THURSDAY

George buys a table model TV set for Hazel so that the family can have the living room to themselves. Hazel ends up with a color set and the result is that the family and friends spend their evenings in Hazel's room.

FRIDAY

George draws up a 5 year contract with Hazel, and after having nightmares over it decides to forget it because nothing can replace the mutual trust and respect each has for the other.

CBS NEWS SURVEY OF MICHIGAN VOTERS INDICATES GOVERNOR WALLACE WOULD HAVE WON MICHIGAN PRIMARY ON DEMOCRATIC VOTES ALONE

Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace would have won the Michigan Democratic primary (Tuesday, May 16) on the basis of the vote of Democrats alone, according to the results of a CBS News survey of 1,800 Michigan voters leaving their polling places.

Those people who said they considered themselves Democrats in the survey constituted only 60 percent of the voters, with the balance consisting of Republicans and independents. But the survey showed that Governor Wallace garnered 40 percent of the vote among those who considered themselves Democrats and that the "cross-over" voting was a factor in the size of his victory, but not in the victory itself.

As expected, this survey indicated that busing was the principal issue in the primary. Voters checked in the CBS News survey indicated that they would have voted in favor of a proposition that would prohibit busing by constitutional amendment by a 2-to-1 margin. Nearly 60 percent of the voters supporting the busing proposition cast their ballots for Governor Wallace, but it is intersting to note that 30 percent of the voters who opposed the amendment also voted for the Alabama Governor.

The CBS News survey also indicated the strength of Sen. George McGovern among young, first-time (18-24-year -old) Michigan voters, but at the same time confirmed the difference in outlook among young people. Students in the groups cast 60 percent of their votes for the Senator, with Governor Wallace running second with 20 percent. Among non-students, Governor Wallace gained 50 percent of the vote, with Senator McGovern trailing with 35 percent.

Among blacks, Sen. Hubert Humphrey was clearly the favorite with over 50 percent of the vote, with Rep. Shirley Chisholm and Senator McGovern dividing the remainder of the vote.

Governor Wallace also was the favorite among blue-collar workers, gaining 55 percent of the vote, with Senators McGovern and Humphrey collecting 20 percent of each. Among union members, Governor Wallace garnered 45 percent of the vote, with Senator McGovern running an unexpectedly strong second with 25 percent of the vote. Senator Humphrey had 20 percent.

George Fine Associates, a New York-based research company, conducted the survey in Michigan for the CBS News Election Unit, which is under the direction of Robert Chandler.

Here's Lucy...

LUCILLE BALL GETS ALL THE BREAKS

When one of the world's greatest comediennes happens to break a leg, she doesn't just sit back and figure that those are the breaks of show business -- she makes the weighty leg cast a show business prop.

Accordingly, Lucille Ball, star of "Here's Lucy," seen Mondays (8:00 - 8:30 PM,) on the CBS Television Network, turned the result of her recent accident into story ideas for next season.

Miss Ball broke her leg onwhat became a prolonged winter ski trip in Colorado. When filming began in March for next season's episodes, she turned her plaster cast into a series regular for a few weeks.

"Initially, of course, Mom was very upset about it," says Lucie Arnaz, the comedienne's daughter on the series and in real life. "Then, typically enough, she started to figure all the funny angles."

Miss Ball was a real celebrity in the hospital. "Every nurse's aide had to get a good look for herself," says Miss Arnaz.

Her door was opened a dozen times a night while people stared at the recumbent comedienne. And manipulating the clumsy limb was also a problem.

"Mom's first attempt to get herself up and in motion was like one of her comedy routines. On the way back into bed, she swung her leg so far over the mattress that it landed on the floor -- how that hurt. And then, there was the problem of fitting into tight spaces, making sudden moves and turning sharp corners."

Next season the added attraction to the Here's Lucy" cast will make its comic television debut, because according to Miss Arnaz, "Mom really broke her funny bone."

What You Want To Know?

Q. I have become a James Cagney fan since I've been watching some of his old movies on TV. Did he play George M. Cohan on the stage as well as in the movie "Yankee Doodle Dandy"? I have seen "Yankee Doodle Dandy" at least half a dozen times and I plan to see it every time I can when it plays on TV. M.C., Lehigh Valley, Pa.

A. James Cagney won an Oscar for his portrayal of George M. Cohan in "Yankee Doodle Dandy." However, he did not play the singer-dancer on the stage. Joel Grey played George M. Cohan in the Broadway musical, "George M., " and he repeated his characterization in a TV version of the music

Q. I understand that Candice Bergens has given up acting now and plans to go into politics. Is this a fact? Mrs. T.M., Bangor, Maine

A. Miss Bergen is not trading her acting career for one in politics. She is very busy these days going from one film to another.

Q. Who played the two leads in the movie "Fraulein" which I saw on TV? I thought the film was pretty good but I didn't recognize the guy and the beautiful girl. T.B., Tampa, Fla.

A. Dana Wynter and Mel Ferrer starred in the 1968 film about a German girl's hard times at the end of World War II.

Q. I am very interested in an actress named Suzanne Pleshett, who appears in many made-for -TV films and other shows. Where does she come from? That is, films or the stage? I have a friend who is a theater nut and she said that Suzanne was a Broadway actress. What plays did she appear in? — L.P., Hickory, N.C.

A. Suzanne Pleshette began her acting career on Broadway. She had a small part in "Compulsion" and had a good featured role in "The Cold Wind and the Warm" with Eli Wallach and Maureen Stapleton. She took over for Anne Bancroft in "The Miracle Worker." Then the movies and TV claimed her services.

The Melba Moore-Clifton Davis Show

5 weeks starting Wednesday,
June 7, 7:00 - 8:00 PM

THE MELBA MOORE–CLIFTON DAVIS SHOW"' a musical-comedy series, will premiere on the CBS Television Network June 7, 1972, and run for five consecutive weeks. Melba Moore is the actress-singer who won a Tony award for her role in "Purlie" on Broadway, and Clifton Davis is an actor-songwriter currently playing the role of Valentive in the Tony-winning Broadway rock musical version of "Two Gentlemen of Verona." Two-time Emmy winner Jean Stapleton is the special guest star on the opening show of the summer series which replaces "The Carol Burnett Show."

In addition to the principals, Miss Moore and Mr. Davis, regulars on the series include comedian Timmy Rogers, comic-impressionists Ron Carey and Dick Libertini, and singer-comedienne Liz Torres. Moms Mabley is also a guest on the opener.

The setting for the show will be the framework of an apartment building; an entrance hall, a rooftop against the skyline of New York, a front stoop and Miss Moore's living quarters. The music and skits spring from the relationships among the various residents of the building. Rogers portrays the apartment superintendent, and Carey, Libertini, Torres as well as Moore and Davis play the different lease-holders.

THE MELBA MOORE–CLIFTON DAVIS SHOW originates in New York and is produced and directed by Stan Harris.
